Puzzling the Angel.

—BY ARTHUR BRISBANE—

HODGE, Cal., April 19.

THE RADIO newsman rolls through the ether. "The Bambino hits a homer," and passes on, like Dante's angel that came, and immediately flew away.

That angel would not know the meaning of "Bambino hits a homer," but millions of Americans know that never heard of Dante's angel messenger. "Bambino" is the pet name of Mr. Ruth, who hits a baseball so hard that he has time to run all around the bases, before the ball can be returned to the home plate.

WOULD THE world really be better off, if fewer of us knew about the Bambino, and more had read Dante. Probably not. The President of our country "throws the ball" and is applauded.

If, instead, he arose in the grandstand and recited Nel Mezzo del camin di Nostra Vita, etc., the "fans" would ask:

"What's the matter with him?"

HERE A MAN makes a home run, a child is kidnaped, a few citizens are murdered in our bootleg crime wave, a few millions are handed out to save some financier that has a horror of the dole, when applied to working people, or some other monotonous happening is recorded, and instantly, everyone hears of it.

Telegraph and telephone carry it, the radio tells it, newspapers print it, neighbors discuss it. In China, a dreadful earthquake has occurred, killing tens of thousands, according to reports, and those reports trickle in slowly, carried over rough roads, almost impassible, translated from one Chinese dialect to another.

The earthquake and its inconceivable horrors will have lost their interest before the full facts are known. Such is China.

NEWS THAT may interest us as long as we live, and interest the world as long as history is written, comes from Manchuria, where Russia's powerful Soviet government is massing troops and war materials. The peace gentlemen of the League of Nations are worried, knowing well that the League would be the first scrap of paper, in any war. Japanese statesmen are worried, believing that attack by Russia is probable.

FEAR MINE BOMBING BY MYSTERY PLANE; MILITIA ALERT

By AL GOUGH
Staff Correspondent

CADIZ, O., April 19.—Search for a time bomb believed to have been dropped at the Somers mine of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company by a mystery plane that circled over the tipple twice early today, was being pushed by National Guardsmen.

The plane circled the tipple, after guard officers had caught what they believed were signals flashing from the ground force of pickets.

The package dropped from the plane sparked as it descended, and guard officers said it was not a flare.

A guardsman detected a red flare that flashed a code signal: one long and two short lights. It was answered a short time later by what appeared to be a rocket that was seen in the sky by Capt. John Parilla. A few minutes later the airplane was seen circling over the Somers mine and dropping the package believed to be a time bomb.

The guardsman who noticed the red flare fired, and a search later revealed footprints in the mud.

RED SOX WIN FIRST, TRAILING IN SECOND

FENWAY PARK, BOSTON, April 19.—Having won the morning battle, 6 to 5, the Boston Red Sox sent Horace Lisenbee to the mound in the afternoon contest of their Patriot's Day games with the New York Yankees here today.

Rhodes was on the mound for the McCarthy sluggers.

The victory in the morning contest was the first the Red Sox have scored in the American League race.

Combs and Dickey hit home runs. Combs got his second home run of the day in the first inning of the second contest.

SWETONIC TO FACE CARDS IN OPENER

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Steve Swetonic, veteran right-hander, will be on the firing line tomorrow afternoon when the Pittsburgh Pirates open their local National League season against the St. Louis Cardinals at Forbes Field.

This was definitely decided on this afternoon following a two-hour workout staged by the Corsairs under the direction of Manager George Gibson. Bill Harris and Ervin Brame also are available for mound duty and will be kept in reserve.

Manager Gibson also announced that he would start his regular lineup against the Redbirds.

The Pirates arrived home from Cincinnati this morning and after a short rest were assembled at Forbes Field for a long workout. A long batting drill and fielding practice marked the session.

Every member of the team, with the exception of Pitcher John Niggeling, who was taken ill in Cincinnati yesterday and was left behind, was reported in excellent shape. The players were elated with the condition of their home field.

Catcher Jimmy Wilson and several Cardinal pitchers arrived in town early this morning to await the main squad, which is due tomorrow morning.

WOLL SEES CONGRESS NULLIFYING DRY LAW

WASHINGTON, April 19.—(AP)—Matthew Woll, of the American Federation of Labor, testified to a Senate committee today that if national prohibition is not modified, "the pressure will become so great that nullification by Congress will result and the federal government will cease to appropriate money for enforcement."

He was one of several witnesses appearing on bills for a change in the prohibition laws. A while before—another committee, that on manufactures, had voted an adverse report on the Bingham 4 per cent beer bill.

Woll contended the economic effect of legalizing beer is greatly needed to relieve the condition of labor. He asked, his voice rising:

"Is it that we want revolution in this country?

"The remarkable thing to me is that labor has been so calm, so conservative during the depression.

"But let that condition continue and I'll not venture to say what labor shall do."

Meanwhile, in the Senate, Senator Tydings (Dem.), of Maryland, renewed his appeal for a $1,500,000,000 public construction program financed by legalizing and taxing beer.

Charging the government with sharing by indirection in the profit from the largest racket in all history" through income taxes on Al Capone, Tydings said "if we can do that we can raise the alcoholic content of the Volstead act."

There was applaus interminglied with a hiss or two as Tydings concluded.

$3,500 JEWEL LOOT SEIZED ON TROLLEY

Thirty minutes after they had left a Mt. Lebanon home with jewelry valued at $3,500, two alleged thieves were captured on a street car and the loot recovered, Mt. Lebanon police reported today.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Miller, of 68 Lebanon Hills Drive, discovered a side window had been broken in their home and jewelry missing. They notified police. The residence is that of Mr. and Mrs. Carl E. Rieck, who have been visiting in St. Petersburg, Fla., and who are expected home tomorrow. The Millers are residing in the house during the absence of the Riecks.

Lieut. Ted Carrington, with Patrolmen William Smith and Arthur Siefert, learning that two suspicious appearing men had boarded a city-bound street car at Washington road, overtook the car at Cape May and West Liberty avenues, arresting two suspects.

In the pockets of the suspects, police said, they found the jewelry.

The two gave their names as Edward Miller, 19, of 818 Arch street, and James Mule, 24, of Federal street. In the latter's room, police said they found a revolver, blackjack and bloodstained clothing.

The two are being held on burglary charges, pending a checkup of their activities.

CRITTENDEN HEIRESS DIVORCED BY COWBOY

TUCSON, Ariz., April 19.—(INS)—A young heiress and a swashbuckling young buckaroo, whose desert romance wealth wrecked, today sought solace in the widely separated environments both gave up under the spell of the yellow Arizona moon.

Paul Showalter, 25-year-old Arizona cowboy, headed back to his first love—the range lands—determined never again to wed into wealth and become a caged mountain lion that loves canyons and timber country.

Caroline Crittenden, heiress to the Crittenden smelter millions, unable to endure the "misery" of life in an auto camp, was reported en route to her old home in Pittsburgh, still in love with the former fiance she jilted to become the bride of Showalter.

The Showalter-Crittenden romance came to an end in the divorce courts here yesterday when the cowboy secured an uncontested divorce on testimony that his wife's wealth had humiliated him and that her love for

BOSTON MARATHON WON BY DE BRUYN

BOSTON, April 19.—(AP)—Paul De Bruyn, 24-year-old German, today won the thirty-sixth annual Boston Athletic Association's marathon run from Hopkinton to Boston. His time was 2:33:36 2-5. This was just behind the record time of 2:33:08 4-5 made in 1929 by Johnny Miles, the Nova Scotia mine boy.

Jimmy Henigan, of Boston, last year's winner, was second, finishing in 2:34:32. Willie Kyronen, of the Finnish-American A. C., was third.

Whitey Michelson, of the Millrose A. A., New York, was fourth.

As the result of his being the first American to finish, Henigan qualified to represent the United States in the Olympic Games marathon.

Kyronen's time was 2:34:55.

MOTHER OF VICTIM WEEPS DURING TESTIMONY

HONOLULU, April 19.—(AP)—Evidence of the brutality of the attack on Mrs. Thalia Massie, which ultimately led to the lynching of Joseph Kahahawai, one of five suspects, was brought into the murder trial today by Clarence Darrow, defense generalissimo.

Dr. Paul Withington, former Harvard athlete, who examined Mrs. Massie after the assault, described her condition under Darrows' questioning.

Again Mrs. Granville Fortescue, mother of Mrs. Massie and one of the four accused of killing Kahahawai, wept as the physician described the injuries received by the attack victim.

Dr. Withington said Mrs. Massie's jaw was broken. She later identified Kahahawai as the man who did this, saying he struck her as she prayed for mercy. The physician also said there were bruises all over her body and that

SNODGRASS SUBWAY PROJECT OPPOSED

The City Transit Commission today disapproved the Brown-Snodgrass Grant street subway plan. The commission holds that the cost to the city of such a loop would exceed the $5,880,000 in funds available for construction and that the project is impractical from an operating standpoint. This was made known in a leter to Mayor Charles H. Kline and City Council today.

The commission says:

"The building of this subway alone will not permit the withdrawal of anything approximating 75 per cent of the surface cars from the downtown streets, as suggested by the proposers. Patrons of the downtown service will not willingly give up what they now have for something of less convenience."

The Transit Commission contended that the moving of public utilities lines the responsibility

FRANTIC, LINDY AGAIN PLEADS FOR SECRECY

By DAVID P. SENTNER
International News Service.

TRENTON, N. J., April 19.—Heart-broken because through many slowly dragging days neither he nor his emissaries succeeded in re-establishing contact with the kidnapers of his infant son, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh today once again pleaded to be freed of any surveillance in his frantic efforts to rescue his baby.

Through Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, head of the New Jersey State Police, Lindbergh for the second time in a week made it plain he found his attempts to reach the abductors or their agents impeded by the press representatives, who followed all moves made in the case.

New York Police Commissioner Mulrooney's personal car yesterday stopped before the home of Dr. John F. Condon, the signer of the "Jafsie" advertisements which resulted in the first contact with the abductors.

The chauffeur left a note, probably written by Mulrooney.

Reports were that he had come to offer facts of a new clue that came into his possession.

BRITAIN OMITS FUND TO PAY U. S. DEBTS

Associated Press

Great Britain's 1932-1933 budget makes no provision for reparations receipts or for international debt payments. The Chancellor of the Exchequer, in presenting it to Parliament said the two accounts balance each other, but that after the Lausanne conference he would "present whatever proposals may be necessary to make effective the measures that conference agrees upon."

This omission was noted in Washington but the only official comment was from Senator Reed, of Pennsylvania, who said that the United States expects to collect debts due it and that he was sure no responsible official had given England any reason to think its payments would not be expected.

America's debtors do not have to make any payment under the Hoover moratorium until next December. In the fiscal year ending June next year, Great Britain owes $171,800,000 to the United States.

CLAIRTON FUMES SUIT LOST BY RESIDENTS

PHILADELPHIA, April 19.—(AP)—The United States Circuit Court of Appeals today dismissed suits of 190 residents of Clairton to collect $1,560,000 damages from the United States Steel Corporation, the Carnegie Steel Company and the Clairton By-Product Coke Company.

The residents sought to collect damages for injury to their land and properties alleged to have been caused by plants along the Monongahela River. The dismissal of the suits by the Circuit Court of Appeals sustains the action of the Federal District Court at Pittsburgh several months ago.

Cinders, waste and heavy gases emitted from the chimneys of the coke plants, the land owners alleged, settled on their lands, ruined crops, spoiled their homes and personal effects and amounted to a common nuisance which they asked the courts to stop.

Judge Gibson, in the Pittsburgh court, dismissed five different bills in equity filed by the 190 complainants on the ground "none of them showed a legal cause of action." In sustaining this ruling, the Circuit Court, in a decision written by Judge Victor B. Woolley, declared that the case of the plaintiffs is so confusing and complexing by the introduction of voluminous papers, charges, statistics and the like, that it is almost impossible for any court to determine on what they base their claims for damages.

Mrs. Massie Ordered To Attend Trial

HONOLULU, T. H., April 19 (INS)—Mrs. Thalia Massie, victim of an attack last September by five hallcases that plunged her family into a tragic series of events which culminated in the shooting of Joseph Kahahawai, today was ordered by Chief Defense Counsel Clarence Darrow to attend the "honor slaying" trial for the first time.

Darrow said that Mrs. Massie will be a witness for the defense later in the week and today he was anxious for her to familiarize herself with the courthouse atmosphere and surroundings.

CAREFULLY SHELTERED

Mrs. Massie has been carefully sheltered at the Pearl Harbor naval base since the trial of her husband, Lieut. Thomas H. Massie; her mother, Mrs. Grace Hubbard Fortescue and two naval men accused of shooting Kahahawai got under way.

Mrs. Massie will listen today to the testimony of two eminent defense psychiatrists, Drs. Edward Huntington Williams and Thomas J. Orbison, as the groundwork for an insanity plea for her husband will be laid.

The [illegible] workings of Lieut. Massie's mind when the pistol he held fired the shot that killed Kahahawai and drew international attention to conditions in this tropical city will be laid bare before the jury.

Darrow informed International News Service that he will summon his two noted mainland psychiatrists, Dr. Edward Huntington Williams and Dr. Thomas J. Orbison, to lay the foundation for a general defense of insanity.

EXPLAIN MENTAL BLANK

The "mental blank" that engulfed Lieut. Massie after Kahahawai confessed to an attack on his wife, along with four other half-castes, will be explained today by the two alienists, after minor defense witnesses have been heard, Darrow said.

For nearly two weeks Drs. Williams and Orbison have had Lieut. Massie under daily observation, Darrow admitted, and they also have given him mental examinations.

Just what conclusions they have reached the astute Darrow declined to reveal, but it was understood they are prepared to testify that hysteria and emotional insanity seized the officer when Kahahawai admitted the attack.

For two hours Prosecutor John C. Kelley hammered at Lieut. Massie, endeavoring both to shake his story—the prosecution has hinted that he is shielding the real slayer—and to dispute the defense of insanity, but the young officer survived the questioning with his testimony unshaken.

KELLEY SCORES

Kelley scored two minor victories, however.

He won from Lieut. Massie the admission that he had been drinking on the night that his wife was attacked.

He also forced the officer to reveal that he had been questioned by Long Island, N. Y., police concerning the "kidnaping" of a baby—but the incident was so palpably absurd that it was generally admitted the reaction of the court favored Massie rather than the prosecution.

Kelley dismissed Lieut. Massie from the witness box with the reservation that he may be subjected to further cross-examination, although the prosecutor said today he may waive it.

It was the insanity plea on behalf of Lieut. Massie that opened the door for the defense to place the officer on the witness stand and draw from his own lips the story of mental suffering he underwent after the attack, and as much detail of the kidnaping of Kahahawai, as he remembered before something snapped in his brain.

STATE CALLS ALIENIST

Meanwhile Prosecutor Kelley, seeking to resist the insanity contention, announced that Dr. Paul Bowers, Los Angeles alienist, is to arrive Thursday from the mainland to aid the state in its rebuttal testimony.

Kelley admitted that he sent a representative to Gov. Lawrence Judd to ascertain if territorial funds would be available to pay Bowers, and the local medical experts, Drs. Stanley D. Porteus and Robert B. Faus.

At first it was tentatively agreed that the money would be forthcoming from the Governor's contingent fund, but it is now reported that private citizens of Hawaiian blood may defray the expenses of the alienists. Kelley was noncommital on this point.

A majority in the mixed-blood Hawaiian Legislature is understood to be hostile to the "honor slaying" defendants.

RACIAL FEELING

As indicative of the feeling that some legislators still hold against Navy officials was a concurrent resolution placed before the Lower House of the Legislature today requesting President Hoover to recall Rear Admiral Yates Stirling, commandant of the Pearl Harbor naval base. Rear Admiral Stirling was claimed to be prejudiced against the present territorial government and officials.

Protests against the spectacle of crowds of men and women waiting all night in front of the Judiciary Building to obtain seats at the trial today led to a police order that no one would be allowed to congregate before 5 o'clock in the morning.

Police dispersed the crowd last night shortly before midnight. Hitherto the would-be spectators have amused themselves by playing cards and singing until the courtroom doors were opened.

Police Chief Charles Weeber also directed his officers to discontinue the searching of spectators for firearms upon entering the court, unless, he added, they were "suspicious characters."

Complaints were made because the police searched Darrow and other defense lawyers but left the prosecution battery alone.

kill the attractive young wife and two children of Louis Hazen, superintendent of the Somers mine, it was reported today. Guards have been stationed at the home and accompanying the two children to school. A miner was reported to have been ordered to leave the town and complied.

Three mines in the Eastern Ohio field resumed operations today without a semblance of disorder.

Several demonstrations had been anticipated, but except for the march toward Byesville, which was turned back at the Guernsey-Belmont County line by Sheriff Tom Gracey, none materialized.

Machine gun squads and platoons of picked riflemen were stationed at the Tasa Mining Company stripping operation and the Harmon Creek Mining Company mine, both near Hopedale.

Two National Guard observation planes, equipped with machine guns and radio, were called into service yesterday.

A committee of strikers from Belmont called at general headquarters here yesterday with a request that military authorities permit peaceful picketing of the mines. Col. W. L. Marlin and his staff met the committee, but declined to grant permission at this time.

Policemen Fight For Child's Life

Two North Side policemen today were aiding 3-week-old Ralph Hudson of 894 River avenue, in his fight against pneumonia. The child, son of Emory and Ruth Hudson, who suffered extreme difficulty in breathing, was being given oxygen by Patrolmen Harry Bush and Ephriam Reatchlous.

The infant became ill two days ago and this morning the parents noticed it was having difficulty in breathing. A doctor was summoned by the parents, who also appealed to police for help.

FAKE ACCOUNTS SNAG 'BEAR' RAID QUIZ

Senate Fails to Find Names Of Cabinet Officers in List of 'Short-Sellers'

International News Service

WASHINGTON, April 19.—The discovery of hundreds of apparent "dummy accounts" in the first 14,000 short-selling records, subpenaed by the Senate from the New York Stock Exchange, today led to demands for a further investigation into the confidential files of brokerage houses.

Committee investigators failed to find the names of either cabinet officers or prominent politicans among the first 14,000 accounts examined. They were unable to say definitely whether cabinet officers engaged in short selling because of the hundreds of "dummy accounts." It was pointed out that, if prominent officials did engage in short selling, they probably would do it under a fictitious trading name.

FURTHER INQUIRIES

Chairman Norbeck (Rep.), of South Dakota, indicated there would be a further inquiry to determine the identity of the actual short traders. He said:

"These names will be made public, but first they must serve their purpose."

The committee secured 24,000 short-selling accounts from the exchange. Its investigators hope to complete examination of them by Thursday, when Richard Whitney, president of the exchange, resumes the witness stand.

ACCOUNTS DIVIDED

The accounts are being divided according to stocks for the purpose of determining which traders attacked particular stocks in their short-selling operations.

William A. Gray, of Philadelphia, special counsel for the committee, intimated Whitney would be questioned Thursday in greater detail about the practice of "pegging" prices and "rigging the market." By that time Whitney will be expected to report whether his private brokerage firm "pegged" the prices of German reparations bonds for J. P. Morgan & Co. The committee apparently has been informed that the Whitney firm did this.

Senator Brookhart (Rep.), of Iowa, announced he would ask Gray to press the inquiry into "bull market" operations as well as short-selling. The records subpenaed, though, deal solely with short-selling.

SUBWAY PLAN OPPOSED

for costs of which has not been determined, and the charging of interest and sinking fund charges against the tube's original cost until one year after its completion would place the project's cost in excess of the Brown-Snodgrass estimate.

The commission declared that officials of the Pittsburgh Railways Company are averse to the wholesale withdrawal of the present service from the heart of the business district. It also contended that the Brown-Snodgrass plan does not lend itself to a future rapid transit system. The curves are too short, it is said. The costs estimated by the Transit Commission are approximately the same as those estimated by Charles M. Reppert, Chief City Engineer.

Council set a hearing on the matter for 2 p. m. Thursday.

On motion of Charles Anderson, Council voted to ask the railways company two questions:

"Will the Pittsburgh Railways use the subway?"

"What rental will the railways company pay the city for its use?"

The Transit Commission was directed to file a supplementary report containing engineering data on which the conclusions announced today were reached. President John S. Herron asked that this information be ready for Thursday's meeting.

President Herron previously had said that if the Brown-Snodgrass plan is disapproved by the Transit Commission, they should offer an adequate substitute. A total of $768,407 has been spent for street railway investigations since 1909 and most of this may be charged directly to subway planning, Herron said.

DAVIS, BUTLER CARRY FIGHT TO PHILA.

Both Senatorial Candidates In City for Rallies; Roosevelt Backers Meet

PHILADELPHIA, April 19.—(AP.)—Senator James J. Davis and Gen. Smedley D. Butler, rival candidates for the Pennsylvania Republican senatorial nomination, carried their contest for primary votes into Philadelphia today.

Butler came here for a luncheon with Republican women and four speeches while his opponent arrived from Wilkes-Barre to address a rally in Moose Hall.

DEMOCRATS MEET

The Philadelphia political stage was further enlivened by a gathering of Democrats supporting Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt for President who are urging an instructed Pennsylvania delegation to the national convention.

Campaigning with Gov. Gifford Pinchot, Gen. Butler yesterday addressed meetings in Dauphin, Cumberland and Lebanon counties, continuing his attacks on the "Philadelphia Gang" and advocating a $10,000,000,000 bond issue and immediate payment of a soldiers' bonus.

Gov. Pinchot took occasion to assail alleged high rates of public utility companies and urge Central Pennsylvanians to "vote to overwhelm the Philadelphia vote."

CANDIDATES SPEAK

With three other candidates as fellow speakers, Senator Davis addressed a reception in Wilkes-Barre last night and urged that measures be taken "to stabilize the coal industry." Arthur H. James, candidate for Superior Court, at the same reception made a fiery attack on Gov. Pinchot, and assailed Gen. Butler's training and experience as not tending to fit him for senatorial duties.

Accompanying Senator Davis to Philadelphia were James Senator David A. Reed, Representative James M. Beck, Auditor General Charles A. Waters and State Senator Frank E. Baldwin.

At Phoenixville last night Mrs. Graham Dourherty, president of the Pennsylvania Organization "or Prohibition Reform, spoke in behalf of Senator Davis, attacking what she termed "Pinchotism" and referring to Gen. Butler as Pinchot's "straw man."

Martin Predicts Davis Victory by Big Margin

HARRISBURG, April 19.—(INS.)—The nomination of Senator James J. Davis by an overwhelming majority was predicted today by Gen. Edward Martin, Republican State Chairman. He said:

"The common sense of Pennsylvania always can be depended upon."

Martin denied that he ever had offered W. S. Adams, local hotelman who is a candidate for the United States Senate, a job in his department, as Adams charged yesterday.

'BLACK PAW' HOAX HINTED

The "Black Paw" notes threatening kidnaping which were received by members of two Penn Township families during the last week were not the work of the same persons, county detectives today announced after investigating an alleged attempt to kidnap Helen Adams, 15, of Milltown. The detectives say that the note received at the Adams home was written and bore no resemblance to the printed threat left several days ago in the home of Clarence Longdon, barbecue proprietor of Verona boulevard.

The detectives are investigating reports that the last note was a hoax. They state that they have found no motive for threatening the Adams family.

Helen Adams, detectives say, was seized at the rear of her home Sunday night and bound and gagged by two men, who fled when they became frightened. A short time later the "Black Paw" note, threatening to kidnap the daughter, was found under the door.

In the Longdon case, the father found his daughter, Sarah Jane, 12, bound and gagged in a second floor bedroom, after he had seen a man run from the house.

Doctor Takes Gassed Girl To School, Saves Record

The seven-year perfect attendance at school record of Violet Hoffman, 13, of Bellevue avenue, Wall Borough, is intact today, though a physician had to take her to school and home again after the family had been overcome by coal gas from the kitchen stove. She made the trip to school with the physician, and studied her lessons in bed.

A trip to the kitchen by her brother, Jesse Hoffman, Jr., 10, for a drink at 4 a. m. probably saved the family. The boy collapsed in the kitchen and his fall awakened the father, Jesse Hoffman, 33, radio entertainer with the East McKeesport Volunteer Fire Company minstrels.

When the father entered the kitchen he, too, sickened. He managed to open the outer door. Violet entering, collapsed and pulled a water bucket from a table. Mrs. Catherine May Hoffman, mother, 30, and Robert, 2, also were overcome. The mother and Jesse today were in bed under the care of Dr. W. J. Salisbury. When Violet explained to the physician her attendance record, he took her to school to report, get the lesson assignments and then back home.

The kitchen stove had been banked last night and gas fumes filtered through the dwelling, the physician said.

Break in Trolley Pay Parley Denied

Reports that negotiations had broken down between the Pittsburgh Railways Company and officers of its employes' union over acceptance of a voluntary 10 per cent wage reduction were denied this afternoon.

While no agreement has been reached, the way is still open for further conferences, it was stated.

British Flier Off On Australia Hop

LYMPNE, England, April 19.—(INS.)—Seeking a new record for the England to Australia flight, C. W. Scott, British airman, took off from here at 5:05 a. m. today.

Planning to make his first stop at Brindisi, on the southern tip of Italy, Scott hoped to make the flight in a little more than eight days.

Steel Mill Worker Gets 'Justice' From Farrell

NEW YORK, April 19.—(INS.)—The "justice" which a veteran United States Steel Corporation employe vainly sought yesterday at the organization's meeting of directors, was obtained today from President James A. Farrell in person.

In a personal interview with Farrell today in the main office here, W. C. Thompson, of West Homestead, Pa., in his own words "got things straightened out."

Thompson, according to Farrell, had left the employ of the company after quarreling with his superior, a foreman of a plant railroad. He had been working at his job for 22 years.

He came to New York yesterday and asked to see Farrell personally about the "injustice" he had suffered. A secretary shunted him out. He took his protests to Newark, N. J., where the board of directors meeting was in progress. On Farrell's promise to see him personally today, Thompson subsided.

After their interview in Farrell's office, the president said:

"Thompson and I have talked things over and I will see that he gets treated right."

Pola Negri Guards Name Of 'Ideal' Fiance

Pola Negri is going to be married in July or August and nobody is going to know who the man is until two weeks before the date, if she has her way.

Describing him, she said:

"This man is my ideal, the one I have been looking for. My two other husbands, well, were—infatuations. This is real. I hope it will be lasting, and I know it will be.

"This man understands me perfectly and stimulates me mentally.

"He is fine. He is in the public eye in Chicago. I really can't give you his business or you would know him."

This burst of romance in the form of a note was written by Pola in her William Penn suite last night when Pola, through her secretary, Miss Dix, was asked if this man of her dreams was Philip Matthiessen Chancellor, 24-year-old scion of a wealthy Chicago family.

Chancellor is not the man, she wrote, as she explained through her secretary that she was too fatigued from her personal appearances here this week at the Stanley Theater to be interviewed except through her secretary.

SOCIALWORKERS AIR MENACE TO CAPITALISM

Federal Relief, Protection Of Labor Rights Urged to Prevent Violent Uprising

A statement declaring that the capitalistic system is definitely on trial in the present crisis has been issued by the community executives' round table, comprised of men in charge of social agencies and community institutions of Allegheny County.

The statement, made public last night, was adopted at a meeting April 7. It read in part:

"Economic, industrial and political remedies for our current ills must be adopted if social evolution is to be uninterrupted by violence and revolution."

URGE CIVIL LIBERTY

It is the belief of the members it was said, that the modern industrial system must be rebuilt to give greater security to workers, and that civil liberty must be less restricted in order to give under-privileged groups freedom to discuss their problems, to make selections of objectives and to choose methods for their attainment.

The statement urged:

"Civil liberty, respect for the rights of organized labor, commitment to the principle of collective bargaining, federal relief on a scale large enough to alleviate existing suffering in the present emergency for which we were so ill prepared; construction of public works and long-range planning of these to meet future threats of depression; the formulation of a comprehensive program of social insurance and a wise and progressive stabilization and democratization of industry."

MEMBER WITHDRAWS

Among the members of the round table are Sidney Teller, director of the Irene Kaufmann Settlement; Dr. Louis Bernstein of the Federation of Jewish Philanthropies, and J. E. Manley, of the Y. M. C. A.

John Ihlder, executive director of the Pittsburgh Housing Association, said last night that he had not signed the statement and that after its adoption he had withdrawn from the group.

Mr. Manley was said to have been out of the city at the time of the meeting, and Dr. Bernstein denied that he had voted on it.

SOLDIER BONUS BILL ASSAILED

WASHINGTON, April 19. (AP)—Full payment of the soldiers' bonus was assailed upon a wide front today by members of Congress who fought during the World war.

LaGuardia (Rep.), of New York, called for unemployment insurance to help all unemployed instead of singling out one group of sufferers. He argued also, that veterans should not be the victims of currency inflation, but should be paid in real money.

Johnson (Rep.), of South Dakota, and Simmons (Rep.), of Nebraska, said there should be some changes in the laws, but that there should not be full payment of the bonus now. Simmons said he would favor payment of the present value of the certificates, but that he did not believe veterans could equitably ask for payment of the 1945 value of them.

NEW TAX PLAN

WASHINGTON, April 19. (AP)—A revised administration program for meeting the government deficit by levying 1,033,000,000 in additional taxes and saving $208,000,000 by reduced expenditures has been presented to the Senate Finance Committee by Secretary Mills.

The proposals contained in a letter to Chairman Smoot yesterday were based on the original Treasury recommendations to the House Ways and Means Committee. However, there were a few important exceptions.

Mills advocated a maximum surtax rate of 42 per cent on individual income taxes instead of the 40 per cent in the House bill and a 13 per cent corporation income levy instead of 13½ in the House bill. The present rate is 12.

In addition he eliminated entirely the proposed tax on gas and electricity domestically consumed and reduced the suggested gasoline tax to be paid at refineries from one cent a gallon to three-fourths of a cent.

Mills expressed optimism over prospects for government economy, estimating savings by this means would be "at least" $200,000,000. Previously, he had not counted on more than $120,000,000.

Pittsburghers Give Hoover Relief Plan

WASHINGTON, April 19.—(AP)—Two Pittsburgh businessmen today presented to President Hoover what they said might constitute a new plan for economic and welfare relief.

The two—Frank F. Brooks, president of the First National Bank of Pittsburgh, and William Witherow, vice president of the Chamber of Commerce there, said the suggestions placed before the President were not now in such form as would permit their publication.

COAL MEASURE HELD INVALID

WASHINGTON, April 19.—(AP)—H. D. Rummel, of Charleston, W. Va., before a Senate Committee today opposed the Davis-Kelly coal regulation bill as "invalid in its plan of control, inconceivable in operation and incompatible with the American theory that business and commerce should be free and unrestrained."

Rummel, counsel for the National Coal Association and the West Virginia Coal Association, contended the bill was unconstitutional and would confer "a grant of power never conferred upon any agency of government."

He also condemned the Lewis bill along similar lines, saying the machinery required "presents a picture of an industry completely socialized."

Lina Basquette Hurt By Fall From Horse

HOLLYWOOD, April 19.—(AP)—Lina Basquette, dancer and film actress, was injured slightly when she fell from a horse yesterday. Physicians said the actress, who was appearing in a western film with Buck Jones, will be confined to her bed not longer than a day or two.

ARRANGE SPANG ART RETURN

Steps have been taken by the executors of the estate of Miss Rosalie Spang who died in Nice, France, last week, to bring her valuable art collection to America. It was bequeathed by her will filed last week, to Carnegie Museum.

The value of the pictures, which include a masterpiece by Franz Hals and family portraits by Sully, is not known, although the value of the estate, based on present day prices, is in excess of $1,000,000.

A copy of the will has been forwarded to France. This is necessary, in order to bring the art collection to this country. It is expected by the executors, Alfred G. Loyd, Robert Wardrop and the People-Pittsburgh Trust Company, that the paintings will arrive here next month.

The body of Miss Spang, who was 87, will be shipped from France May 4, and will be brought here for burial. Some of her relatives are on the way to bring the body here.

know that fighting Stalin's Russia would be unlike fighting Russia under the czars. That was a pleasant excursion. This would mean fighting millions of trained men, fanatic in their patriotism filled with the fervor of revolution that has always proved powerful in war.

IT MAY BE Russia's destiny to play the part of overlord in Asia, and lead as she chooses the hordes that once overran Western Europe. The possibility need not worry us for, if Russians become so powerful, they will become very rich. And if they become rich, their ideas and plans will change.

A PLEASANT day at Hodge on this Mohave Desert, temperature 84 in the shade, kept down by cool winds that blow over snow-covered mountains between here and the Pacific. New York's temperature, according to a Los Angeles telephone report, is 33.

Ranchers here are hoping for really warm weather, to heat the earth and make their alfalfa grow at night. With good hot sun, you grow a crop of alfalfa in three weeks.

THE DESERT is alive with millions of lizards, horned toads, enormous desert turtles that carry a supply of water with them, jack rabbits, coyotes that follow the rabbits, and lynxes powerful enough to eat the coyote, when hunger drives.

IT IS NEVER lonely on this plateau 2,000 feet above the ocean. Automobiles roll by on the hard road that leads east and west, always more westbound than eastbound. On Sunday morning, as clearly as though his orchestra stood in the room, you could hear Walter Damrosch's admirable General Electric concert, that included the prelude to Lisat's symphonic poem, and Mendelssohn's Scotch symphony. Such music makes the desert flowers and sunshine brighter, the grass greener and the sky more beautiful.

AT 1 O'CLOCK a shiny red Waco biplane, number 11230, circles above the ranch, picks out a smooth, ready-made field and lands, just outside the fence protecting alfalfa from rabbits.

Three men climb out, strip off their parachutes, talk about automobiles and airplanes for an hour, then fly back to the Pacific. A roundtrip of six hours by automobile, two hours by plane.

MARION McKEEN, who pilots the plane, has flown 5,800 paid hours and many other hours unpaid, for amusement. He has taught 161 men to fly and they are all alive. Much depends on how you are taught.

Hundreds of perfect pilots know nothing about teaching. Ask your teacher how many students he has LIVING. Both his companions are fliers taught by McKeen. And both, William Packer and James L. Dixon, are General Motors automobile men.

PACKER, HEAD of General Motors Chevrolet department throughout all this region from Seattle down the coast to San Diego, could not attend to his business if he did not fly.

The airplane is really used out here. For instance, Packer leaves his headquarters at Oakland at noon, reaches Portland, Ore., 650 air miles distant, at 4:30, transacts business, flies on to Seattle, 135 miles, in an hour, then back to Oakland, 785 miles in five and a half hours.

He flew from Oakland down to Los Angeles last Saturday, 333 air miles, in one hour and 58 minutes. The trip by fast train takes 13 hours and a quarter.

Flying saving time, will add many years to the working life of energetic men. Mr. Packer says:

"Nobody can attend to his work properly without flying, if he is not merely IN his job, but actually ON his job."

IMPORTANT NEWS for publishers and the public generally comes by wire from W. J. Daily, of the electric refrigerating department of General Electric, Cleveland, O.

The company begins today a special daily newspaper advertising campaign that will cost $500,000, making advertising for that department this year total more than $7,000,000. General Electric's competitors are carrying on similarly energetic campaigns, which smooths the path of the deserving publisher.

MANY A YOUNG man might find success, and the start that he seeks, in the production of good advertising ideas, so important in fighting depression, and building business. H. J. Klingler, of General Motors, starts a compaign based on the slogan "Help Others by Helping Yourself," addressed to automobile agents.

The sales campaign emphasizes the fact that one moderate priced automobile represents, in its making, 71 days of labor, so that the buyer of a car gives work for 71 days to a man that needs work, in addition to giving pleasure to his family, and helping business recover.

Such ideas are valuable. They stimulate imagination, and, as Napoleon said:

"Imagination rules the world."

7TH STAY GIVEN SLAYER DUE TO DIE TONIGHT

Murder Suspect Captured After Doomed Man Talks; Spared for Ninety Days

ALBANY, N. Y., April 19.—(AP.)—A last-minute reprieve of 90 days was granted today to "Cockeye" Benny Gordon, condemned to die for the slaying of a Bronx garage man. Lieut. Gov. Lehman ordered the execution, which had been scheduled for tonight, delayed until the week of July 25.

The youth had hoped a last-minute tip-off he gave police would get him the commutation. The tip led to the arrest of Jack Zaroff, 29, who was taken battling furiously by a large squad of detectives who "ruined" a Newark restaurant last night.

WANTED IN SLAYING

They said they wanted Zaroff in connection with the murder of Patrolman Maurice O'Brien, shot down in 1930 while he was investigating a complaint here.

Gordon "came through" at the last moment, detectives said. He had gained six reprieves by promises to "turn up" the policeman's slayer. Always something went wrong, however, and no capture could be made.

Gordon told authorities he knew the slayer, but couldn't tell exactly where he could be found. Yesterday, however, he was reported to have railed frantically for Warden Lewis E. Lawes and exclaimed:

"I remember now, it was a place with a very long bar in Newark."

FOIL ATTACK

Although detectives would not talk much, they were understood to have trailed Zaroff from the place with the long bar to the restaurant. He dashed into a telephone booth reaching for a pistol in his pocket, but the detectives were too quick.

Battling all the way against the swinging clubs of the police, he was lodged in a Newark cell to await extradition.

Gordon has spent 15 months in the death house. He was convicted of the murder of Anthony Grisoldi in a Bronx garage holdup. He hopes to swap the death sentence for a life term.

him died three days after their marriage here, March 13. Before he headed back to the ranges, he said:

"Riches killed our love.

"I refused to live on my wife's money.

"I wanted to make my own way as I had out there in the cattle country since I was a kid, but Caroline wouldn't give up wealth so we just decided to quit."

The cowboy and the young Pittsburgh society girl first met here at an exclusive hotel where he was riding master and she a guest.

There followed horseback rides into the desert under the Arizona moon, a whirlwind courtship and marriage a few days later in a simple church ceremony.

LIVED IN AUTO CAMP

The two took residence in a local auto camp and the end of the desert romance came quickly. Showalter revealed:

"She told me a few days later that she loved her former fiance and couldn't spend the rest of her life living so miserably."

Showalter did not seem to feel bitterly over the shattering of his romance. He added:

"You know I didn't like it either. There's something about riding and sleeping out under the stars that gets into your blood."

Miss Crittenden disappeared from Tucson several days before the divorce action was filed and heard. She did not contest it but was restored her maiden name under terms of the decree. Her friends said she had come back to her Pittsburgh home to forget.

FORMERLY OF SHIELDS

Before her marriage, Mrs. Showalter was Miss Caroline Jackson Crittenden, of Shields, a granddaughter of Mrs. James B. Oliver and of the late Gov. Crittenden, of Kentucky. Her former fiance, John K. Mumford, could not be communicated with at the University of Virginia today. His roommate denied Mumford could wed the young woman who jilted him.

Byers' Body Reveals Large Amount of Radium

NEW YORK, April 19.—(AP)—Dr. Charles G. Norris, chief medical examiner, said last night that the largest quantity of radium ever found in a human body was in the remains of Eben M. Byers, Pittsburgh millionaire, who died here March 31.

Dr. Norris said his report was based on an examination of the remains by Dr. Alexander O. Gettler, city toxicologist. The examiner declared:

"The bones, brains, lungs, liver and kidneys of Byers contained more radium than has ever been found in another body. There is no way to indicate the amount mathematically, but the amount was larger than was found in the body of Amelia Maggia, the first woman victim in the New Jersey radium poisoning cases."

After Byers' death it was said that he had taken radium into his system by drinking a patent medicine.

SMITH ATTACK ANSWERED BY ROOSEVELT

Governor Repeats Power And Tariff Views; Urges Economic Policy Aiding All

ST. PAUL, Minn., April 19 — (AP) — The challenge "if that be true, to make the most of it," was handed down by Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York tonight as he restated his views on power regulation and the tariff which he charged were made [illegible] Smith.

Twenty-five years ago, when the people of the state were little aware of their great heritage, a Legislature attempted to alienate this great possession to the Aluminum Company of America. It was then and is now, I believe, controlled by that distinguished American, the Ambassador to the Court of St. James.

PRAISES SMITH

In this contest my distinguished predecessor, Gov. Smith, was happily able to prevent the control from passing out of the hands of the people. When I took office, I undertook at once a very definite plan for the development of this great power and I laid down a very definite application of the principle to which I have alluded.

Governor Roosevelt Firm for State Liquor Control

BOSTON, April 19 — (AP) — Franklin D. Roosevelt yesterday [illegible] definitely in favor of returning liquor control to the states and gave reasons why he has not changed his position, expressed opinion on prohibition. His statements were contained in a telegram made public by the Liberal Civic League.

The group had asked Roosevelt to clarify his stand on prohibition, in view of charges that he was a dry candidate and would be under compelling obligation to the dry element in the Democratic party if he were nominated for the Presidency by his party. In answering the appeal, Roosevelt said:

"Please consider I still maintain 100 per cent my earlier expression of opinion favoring the return of control of intoxicants to the several states. That is definite. I have on so many occasions agreed with your statement that the time has come for definite action."

$50,000 Damage Suit Transferred Here

The [illegible] Supply Co. yesterday was granted permission in a suit for $50,000 damages filed by Harry Barbush, of Beaverbrook, Washington County, that he be transferred to the Federal District Court on petition of the defendant company.

In his bill of complaint, Barbush said he was seriously injured August 12, 1932, when a truck he was driving, of the Pittsburgh Steel-Bonded Pipe Test Pair, was run into by a bus owned by the defendant company. He charged negligence and carelessness on the part of the operator of the bus. The truck, Barbush avers, was knocked over an embankment and destroyed.

30-Hour Week Plan Waits Council Rule

A plan by which all workmen employed by city contractors would be placed on a 30-hour week basis, as suggested by the American Federation of Labor, Work Committee was in Council for consideration today. President Jess S. Herron said he was confident the measure would pass.

If successful, according to the Labor committee, the plan would give more men jobs and relieve distress throughout the city. Similar action is being taken in a number of other cities throughout the nation, the committee said.

4 Without saying a word, she served it for dinner that night. No good he took a second cup.
5 It wasn't long before he was sleeping soundly and acting like a human being again.

COURT RULING BARS SCHOOL

GREENSBURG, Pa., April 19 (INS).—A temporary decree was filed by Judge C. D. Copeland yesterday restraining the school directors of North Huntingdon Township, near Jeannette, from erecting the proposed consolidated public school at Fairmount on the Blair property.

The court also ordered the school board to submit to the State Board of Education for approval or disapproval the site known as Painter property. The decree became absolute in 10 days unless exceptions are filed.

The case has been before the court since May, 1931, as a result of an appeal made by Thomas Morris and 15 other taxpayers from North Huntingdon Township, asking for an injunction to restrain construction of the building at Fairmount, claiming it was not near the center of the school district population. They desire that the building be placed at Hahntown. Several hearings were held.

Preceding the speaking there will be an organ recital by Earl Mitchell. Junior League girls will serve as ushers. City Public Works Director Edward G. Lang has announced he will send palms and other plants to decorate the stage. Mrs. Allderdice will be chairman.

ABOUT FACE!

FOR twenty years young America has devoted its scientific and inventive genius to the passion of mass production. The world consumed—until it could consume no more. And then—with prosperity rampant—the machine the man had builded turned upon himself!

Today the world cries: About face! What about men? Men who have spent lifetimes in becoming masters of their trades. They must have work. For they are the backbone of all business. Men must work!

"The world will little note nor long remember what we say here, but it can never forget what they did here"—might well be said of the skilled workmen who with nerves of steel and muscles of iron have built this great city. But that which we can do—we must do.

We have gathered together a great exhibition of skilled workmen and machines. Here on our floor they are making Pittsburgh products . . . china . . . umbrellas . . . brushes . . candy . . . mattresses . . . and scores of other things.

We feel sure that when you have seen these products in the making, you will prefer Pittsburgh made products when you buy—help keep Pittsburgh skilled labor busy and put more Pittsburgh skilled craftsmen to work.

VIENNA, April 19.—(AP)—Two Viennese barons were arrested and a physician who had been associated with them committed suicide with his wife today as a result of a gambling scandal in two fashionable clubs here.

WHY do some people's teeth last? WHY don't other people's teeth last?

People talk of "losing teeth" as though they were lost accidentally, the way money and jewelry are just dropped somewhere. Five times out of ten those teeth are actually lost by a serious gum disease called "pyorrhea." If you want to keep your teeth, guard them against pyorrhea.

Everyone knows about pyorrhea. But it is likely to be regarded as a distant danger. Perhaps you fear it may approach you at forty or older. The trouble is you may have it now and not recognize it. For ten years may pass while this dread disease is busy undermining the structure of your teeth and gums. Then one tooth goes. How long after that will you keep the remainder?

Get ahead of pyorrhea. Don't let it get you. There is no use in putting off the dentist until you think you need him. Visit him twice a year and make a point of it. That is prevention—and sensible prevention, too. Then there is the question of home treatment and care. There is no use in making believe that white, shining, "clean" teeth are either safe or sound. Nobody believes that any more. The genuine can be considered as well. Forhan's Toothpaste is the double-duty toothpaste that does both halves of the job. Originated by Dr. R. J. Forhan, for 26 years a pyorrhea specialist. Save pain, expense and humiliation. Start the whole family today with the big brown tube of Forhan's. All druggists.

Swamped!

THE DUTCH MASTERS CIGAR CONTEST ended at midnight, April 11th. Complete arrangements had been made in advance for handling a great mass of entries so that the judges could make their decision promptly.

BUT—we underestimated by tens of thousands the number of replies. The judges are snowed under, swamped! Each entry is being carefully read, but it is going to take weeks, yet, to finish the task conscientiously.

Just as soon as a decision can be reached, announcement will be made in this newspaper.

A flood of letters tells us of men who, during the contest, smoked Dutch Masters cigars for the first time and how no other smoke will ever again satisfy them.

So, light up Dutch Masters—they'll put you in a calm, happy mood while waiting for the winners to be announced.

SEE KREUGER BLACKMAIL

STOCKHOLM, April 19 (INS) — The belief that Ivar Kreuger was a victim of blackmailers, and that this may have been a prime factor leading to his suicide in Paris March 12, was advanced by police.

Enormous sums of money have disappeared, investigators revealed without a trace as to where they may have gone.

Police of New York, London, Paris, and other leading financial centers of the world have been asked to aid in the search for possible blackmailers.

A special committee of 10 was to be appointed with authority to conduct an international investigation into the affairs of Kreuger companies.

The investigators to date have established that the "match king" had secret agents throughout the world, and they declared today that these agents appeared to have been instrumental in the paying of large sums on bribes to get match monopolies.

LIBERALS GET KY. WARNING

PINEVILLE, Ky., April 19 (INS) — Guarantee against molestation on Bell County highways but warnings that would be "suppressed just as we would suppress the mad dog" has been sent the American Civil Liberties Union.

Walter Smith, county attorney, acknowledging Arthur Garfield Hays' letter informing of a contemplated visit to Kentucky coal fields, explained this section's bar to "invaders" had been put up as part of the process of "abating a common nuisance." Smith wrote:

"All roads lead to Pineville and some lead from it. You can use your own judgment about which of these you will take. Your freedom of movement on either road will be unhampered."

Blonde Iron Woman's Life Term Is Upheld

DENVER, April 19.—(INS)—Mrs. Pearl O'Loughlin, 28, blonde "iron woman," must spend the remainder of her life in prison. The State Supreme Court ruled in denying a rehearing in her case. She was convicted of slaying her 16-year-old stepdaughter, Leona, in one of Denver's most sensational crimes. The child's body was found in Berkeley Lake here in October, 1930. Mrs. O'Loughlin repudiated an asserted confession of the crime and the real motive behind the little girl's murder has never been revealed.

Boy Gets 2 Years In Fatal Shooting

Thomas. Hudak was alleged to have shot Bubal after the latter shot Hudak's older brother, Peter, 19, during a deer hunt at Evergreen Valley last December.

SCHOOL JANITOR OUSTER BALKED

Retention of John Leese, 60, as custodian of the Andrews School, Ella street, was approved by the Board of Public Education last night over the protests of Dr. A. L. Lewin, board member. Lewin demanded Leese be dismissed because of the alleged attempt of Leese's son, Robert, 28, to attack a teacher, March 17. The son, later adjudged insane and committed to Mayview, served as unofficial janitor at the school.

Approval was given a bill of $7,500 submitted by Price, Waterhouse & Co., accountants, for auditing school tax revenues from January 1 to November 30, 1931. Dr. Lewin and Frank E. Frese voted against approving the bill, the latter proposing a settlement of $5,000 and demanding an itemized bill.

The board also approved a recommendation of Dr. Ben G. Graham, City Superintendent of Schools, that the Clifford B. Connelley Trade School be operated as a summer school for adult men for six weeks beginning June 27. He also recommended operation of eight recreational centers and 18 swimming pools for seven weeks, beginning July 5.

To half pint of water add, one ounce bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and one-fourth ounce of glycerine. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. It imparts color to streaked, faded or gray hair, and makes it soft and glossy. 11th Ward Poll Shift Protested in Court

An injunction to restrain County Commissioners and the County Election Bureau from changing the polling place in the Seventeenth District of the Eleventh Ward was sought in an equity suit listed for hearing in Common Pleas Court.

Charles A. Devlin, whose garage at the rear of his home, 610 Mellon street, has been the polling place for a number of years, filed the suit through Attorney Saul Rubin. On April 8, at a hearing for which notice was not given Devlin, the change was ordered by the County Commissioners and their action is unlawful, as changes within three weeks of an election must be made by Quarter Sessions Court, the suit charged. The polls were moved to the property of Joseph Hoover, 821 Mellon street, by the order.

That Soviet Picture Makes People Want to Go to Work

BY GEORGE SEIBEL

Just now I am boiling with rage! Having gone to the Avenue Cinema to absorb some rabid Bolshevik propaganda, this Soviet film, "Road to Life," turns out to be a bold bad plagiarism from the George Junior Republic, served up in the approved style of Oliver Optic and Horatio Alger. Maybe the Hon. Hamilton Fish can discover the serpents in the altalfa, but my blunted intelligence found nothing to alarm my bloated capitalistic soul. In fact, this film looks very much like a glorification of labor, salvation by work, and some of the major virtues extolled in the gospel according to St. Henry Ford. You come away with a consuming ambition to make shoes and boots, to push a jackplane or build a railroad. It is really a very uncomfortable picture to watch during the season when spring fever rages. Seven men got up before the last reel and went home to do odd jobs for their wives—which, of course, is revolutionary.

Mr. Seibel

Road to Life" is a story of the reclamation of the wild boys of Russia—gamins of adandoned and orphaned children who were a great problem a few years ago. The picture shows by what economic and psychological methods the wild boys were tamed and became useful citizens.

And are those boys wild! They are like a whole collection of Mason Godlys. Nuff Said. Yes, sir, a mob scene from that film will have them first bath. Yes, there is even soap propaganda in this film.

WE GET SUSPICIOUS

Suspicion crept into our skull mush as soon as someone issued the following proclamation:

There shall be no uncared-for and homeless orphans in the Soviet Republic. They shall all be made into useful and happy citizens.

That sounded very much like a cunning scheme to subvert our rugged individualism.

More suspicion arose when the homeless children were herded into an empty church. It looked very much as if the previous occupants had been expropriated by the atheistic powers. However, it was consoling to note that the building itself had suffered no damage.

But then the picture took an Oliver Optical turn and presently all those wild children were working away as if some efficiency expert were stop-watching them.

Can human beings work that hard even though too young to know better?

It seems that they were working for themselves and were glad to be wage slaves because they were their own bosses.

REALISM AND ROMANCE

It's a grand romance from the fairy world of Karl Marx and Nikolai Lenin. It is realism, too, with some of the finest character photography seen here. Romance creeps in when the wild boys build a railroad and seem to find ties and steel rails growing on the bushes. Hans Andersen never told of any elves and gnomes more helpful and Oliver Optic never drew a finer moral.

If not history, it is sound pedagogy which social workers will find inspiring. Thieves are reformed by trusting them; the worst of the boys ends as a martyr to the cause. Stolen spoons are recovered by a plan cribbed from Herbert Spencer's "Education." But the whole picture appears to infringe upon the George Junior Republic, as already intimated.

It is a wonderful film, full of life and drama, but it's a sad disappointment to find Bolshevik propaganda makes us work.

Plays and Players

—By WILLIAM J. LEWIS—

When Lew Leslie's "Rhapsody In Black" returns to the Alvin next week there will be much that is new in it since its previous visit here, but most of the artists that were here before are returning. These include Ethel Waters, greatest singer of her race on the stage today; Valaida, peppy and versatile performer; Cecil Mack's Choir and Pike Davis' Continental Orchestra. The boys in the box office are ticketing up folks now, several days in advance, because there is no attraction in the Sixth street house this week.

Col. Stoopnagle and Budd, funny fellows of the air, will be featured in the stage bill that comes to the Penn Friday. It is called "Forward March" and is made up of varied specialties including dancing of the Twelve American Steppers.

The Friars Frolic, annual jamboree of the Friars Club of New York, will make a road tour this year, following its presentation in the Metropolitan Opera House, New York. Pittsburgh being in the itinerary. It will be in the Alvin for two days, some time in May. The company will include 75 artists of the stage, radio and motion pictures. S. Jay Kaufman and George M. Cohan, abbot of the Friars, will stage the production.

* * *

A series of performers of "The Merchant of Venice" will begin in the Little Theater of the College of Fine Arts, Carnegie Tech, Saturday, the day observed as the anniversary of the birth of Shakespeare. It will be played by students of the Drama Department of Tech, under the direction of B. Iden Payne, formerly of the faculty of Tech, who returns annually as guest director to supervise a Shakespearean play.

Irene Dunne May Play Nurse

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, April 19.—Now it comes out why R-K-O wouldn't hear of Irene Dunne signing up with Mr. Ziegfeld.

She is to play the lead in "Nurse Smith," a screen original by one of Hollywood's veteran scenarists, Carey Wilson. Around the studio they are particularly keen on the story, which is about the pretty assistant of a fashionable baby doctor.

Flo Ziegfeld

There's a romance with a married man, his wife's an unpleasant person, of course, a renunciation episode and, to top it off, the happy ending so much desired by screen fans.

In all probability, Nurse Smith will go into production as soon as the star finishes her Universal engagement in Back Streets. Almost she will be given a short vacation.

HERE'S GOSSIP

A person who might know tells me that Greta Garbo wants to produce two pictures on her own, one of them Salome. Remember the Nazimova version? It cost her thousands and she never got them back. . . . The Marx Brothers' picture will take a six-weeks' layoff due to Chico's fractured kneecap. There remains about two weeks' work on the film, but this includes a rough-and-tumble football game. During the layoff Director Norman McLeod and his wife will go east. They may take a quick trip to Europe. . . . Dick Wallace, on the other hand, has canceled his European trip to direct another film for Paramount. . . . Ran across Bebe Daniels, lunching with Ben Lyon at Fox. Bebe is now reading the sixth script submitted to her by Warners. Chances are she'll turn it down. In this event, Warners have the right to pick any story they want. Bebe has only one more picture there. She and Ben still may appear on the coast in "There's Always a Juliet." . . . George O'Brien, Cecilia Parker, Director Dave Howard and the rest of "The Killer" troupe left for Arizona yesterday. They'll live in a town perched on a hillside. . . . Joan Marsh has her blonde hair all fuzzed for her new picture. . . . Helen Twelvetrees's mother, Mrs. William Jurgens, is out here from New York for a month's visit. . . . Gavin Andree, R-K-O's latest charmer and one of the prettiest girls to reach Hollywood in a long time, always lunches alone. . . . Martha Sleeper and Randolph Scott are making eyes at each other these days.

Duquesne to Present 'Seven Chances'

The Duquesne University Alumni Association will present Roi Cooper Megrue's "Seven Chances" in the Nixon Theater, May 3. Dr. Clinton E. Lloyd, of the university's School of Theater Arts and Dramatic Literature, will direct the production. Raymond Baum will have the leading role. Other players will include Joseph McAteer, Paul G. Sullivan, Harry Brown, Charles Mullen, Roy Getty, Martin Flanagan, Bernadine McNamamy, Mercedes Hoffman, Lily Schaffler, Helen Louise Day, Eleanor Hollahan, Anna Marie Geiger, Theresa Heisensauer and Angela Miller.

Cap and Gown Cast Hit in 'Domino'

The Silver Domino," a musical masquerade is the annual show of the Cap and Gown Club of the University of Pittsburgh and drew a gala audience to the Nixon Theater last night. It is sponsored again by the Civic Club and I should say the honors were divided for both clubs can be proud of their achievement. The parade of color, tunes and rhythm kept everyone bursting with applause and laughter and what began a trifle slowly ended a bang-up success.

Mr. Lissfelt

Briefly, the plot tells that it's an ill wind that blows no one good. In these perilous days when a man writes his debts in red ink, the shrewd Stanley Penn makes a million in that commodity. Two keen booking agents lure him into a round-the-world cruise in order to sell him entertainment and to foist upon him a celebrated star, The Silver Domino.

The star cannot be bought and so an accomplice is dressed for the part. The ensuing complications make the comedy and the cruise to colorful lands makes the variations.

COSTUMING BRILLIANT

Costuming in this show is as brilliant as ever, the scenery more so. Ensemble dancing is excellent and that of the Tiller girls astonishingly feminine. The solo dances of William Pillich and especially those of Eugene Kelley are beyond the amateur rank. Kelley's barbarian dance is a moment of striking realism. Perhaps the chorus found much help in the longer skirts of this year's fashion and its members will be remembered by their virile beauty, maybe their Adam's apples.

Marshall Baker's "Dixie Lee," the leading lady, was by far the best impersonator of winsome ladyhood, but John Wyeth's "Mrs. O'Zilch" was truer of a type than society might wish to acknowledge.

Carl Swartz's "Stanley Penn" was nicely thought out; he kept it consistently dignified and simple during the entire show. Even better was Bergheimer's "Garvey Hall, a critic" who doubtless had the smartest lines in the play and carried his burden with the security of a trained player.

SINGING DISAPPOINTS

Pitt is weak vocally and though there are a number of good voices in the ensemble, only occasionally did the singer put over the footlights the message which the music or text warranted. Hubbard's impersonation of Ghandi was capital. Dorman's "Statuettes" was a pretty bit, and the entire Venice scene was the top of the evening.

G. Norman Reis and Louis Fuhan are responsible for the book, and as often before, the songs are from the worthy pens of Gus Schnabel, Dr. Benjamin Levent and John St. Peter.

Double Revue In Academy

"Black and White Revue," in two acts, 38 scenes and featuring 75 persons, is the current attraction in the Academy. The show is two complete productions. "The Permant Winners," headed by members of George Jaffe's stock burlesque company, and Jordan's Black Rhythm Company" vie for honors. "The Permant Winners" is presented by the stock company members. Eddie Kaplan and Harry "Hello Jake" Fields again head the cast and their combined efforts kept the piece moving at a fast pace. There were racks and antics were lots of fun.

The second half of the bill gives Jordan's Negro players an opportunity to strut their stuff. Featuring a 10-piece jazz band, the Rhythm performers displayed some fast dancing. Clyde Jordan tops the dancers. Hazel Lee is prominently mentioned among the singers while Sam Threads leads the comics.

BITS OF LIFE

All in a Day

TAXI STORY

AT THE CORNER of 91st Street and Park Avenue I limbed into a taxicab.

"To the Ziegfeld Theater," I told the driver. "Cut into the park at 72nd Street and then go down Sixth Avenue. And take it easy. I'm very nervous this evening."

The driver nodded.

"Just as you say, sir," he replied. "I find that it always pays to cater to the customer. But you needn't be nervous with me at the wheel. I value my life as highly as any of my passengers."

I was rather amused. It was obvious that this driver had something of an education. He wasn't quite the usual type so I continued the conversation.

I suppose you've noticed that I write many yarns about cab drivers. The reason for that is simple: they provide me with some of my best material. I think there are some 25,000 taxi chauffeurs in New York City, and I know that all of them encounter interesting experiences at one time or another.

Thus I never fail to engage my driver in a conversation. If he is dull, I stop abruptly. If I am dull, he stops abruptly. It all works out very nicely.

"How's business?" I asked my man. It was a silly question because everybody knows how business is. But it served its purpose.

"Not too good," was the driver's reply. "Money is too tight these days and everybody subsequently suffering. But I'm not complaining. As a matter of fact, I'm very happy."

I laughed.

"Good," I chirped. "I'm glad to know that somebody is happy. I haven't heard that word in a long time."

"Well," returned the chauffeur, "you're hearing it now, sir. And, if you're interested, I'll tell you why. My wife gave birth yesterday to the healthiest-looking kid you ever laid eyes on. Whenever I think of it, I get the grandest feeling."

"It's remarkable what a kid can do. It's a sensation that can't be duplicated. But I suppose you've been all through that yourself, eh, sir!"

I coughed.

"I admit nothing," I said. "But I will say that—"

I never said it. In swinging into the park, my cab missed another one by a fraction of a hair. The thing was as close as the two pieces of bread in a railroad station sandwich.

"Good heavens!" I ejaculated. "What's the matter with you? Didn't I tell you I was nervous?"

The driver was most apologetic.

"Sorry, sir," he murmured. "I was trying to be so careful, too. But when I get to talking about my baby, I forget everything else for the moment. He's the grandest child ——"

I stopped him quickly.

"If you don't mind," I asserted, "let's talk about something else. Something that will enable you to keep your mind on your driving. I haven't a doubt that your boy will grow up to be the President of the United States or, with better luck, the owner of a successful brewery. But there's no reason why we should both get killed right now because of it."

"How about the depression? Have you any ideas along that line?"

He stopped for a light and turned around.

"Plenty," he said. "As a matter of fact, I wrote a poem about the depression that was published yesterday. Would you like to hear it?"

Among the things that I wanted least in the world was to hear a cab driver's poem on the depression. But he failed to wait for my response. Before I could get a word out, he was already into his second line.

I wish I could quote it to you—but I unfortunately failed to memorize the masterpiece. All I remember is that it contained some homely philosophy and wound up by stating that "if Prosperity's to be our sign, just give us back our beer and wine."

The driver gave it just the proper touches. His voice was dramatic on the high spots and very soft as he touched on the evils of the depression. His gestures were of the finest. It's a lucky thing for Jimmy Cagney that the Warner Brothers were not sitting in that cab with me, because Jimmy would undoubtedly have been out of a job.

"Well, he smiled. "How did you like it?"

I awakened with a start.

"What?" I muttered. "Oh, the poem. That was fine. Yes, sir. Positively great. I can assure you right now that it's better than a lot of the stuff I've written."

That seemed to interest him.

"Do you write?" he asked.

"Well," I replied, "there seems to be a difference of opinion about that. A few people say yes, but the great majority say no."

We were nearing the park exit. He slowed down. It was obvious that I had hit something very close to his heart.

"Ever get paid for the stuff you write?" he inquired.

"Not half enough," I assured him promptly. "But what makes you ask? Do you want to be a writer?"

He sighed.

"That's the one ambition of my life," he said softly. "I'd give anything I might ever own just to get the chance to show what I could do in that direction. But what's the use of talking about it? It's just a dream—because you've got to have somebody behind you before you get anywhere in that game.

"Look at those columnists and people like that. They had to have somebody start them off. They had to have connections. Where would mine ever come from?"

Ah, now we were getting somewhere. I began to feel sorry the ride was almost over.

"You never know," I observed brilliantly. "But speaking of columnists, how do they rate this guy Hellinger? Ever hear of him?"

The chauffeur laughed.

"Hear of him?" he replied. "Why, sir, you're talking of my ideal. As far as I'm concerned, he's the greatest guy in the racket. Writes right down to earth and, when you read him, you think you're talking to him. I'd rather be he than anybody I know. He's absolutely my ideal."

I gulped. When I tell you that I was actually embarrassed, I'm not kidding. It was a nice kind of embarrassment, of course, but it did make me feel strange.

I tried to change the subject but it was no use. Until we drove up to the stage door of the Ziegfeld Theater I continued to hear praise for Hellinger. I began to believe the driver was something of a nut on the subject. I heard so much praise that I was positively relieved when I stepped from the cab.

I took out $2 and handed the money to him.

"Here you are, buddy," I said. "Buy a little something for your wife. You handed me a great kick. Because I happen to be Hellinger."

He shifted his gears hurriedly.

"You're telling me!" was his amazing reply. "What do you think I told you all that bologney for?"

And he drove off!

The Old Story

Paying a woman's penalty—time after time

In the year of 19?? there should be no monthly martyrs to pain. Some women still think they must suffer—they haven't heard of Midol—or can't believe that it has solved their problem.

Did you know that five to seven minutes after swallowing a tiny tablet you can be yourself—can be comfortable—can go about without feeling a single further twinge of muscular pain?

Your regular periods need not be painful—they are not painful to those who know of Midol. These wonderful tablets make Nature's process a mere incident. No pain, not even discomfort when you have learned to depend on Midol, as women who used to have the hardest time have found. It is not a narcotic, does not interfere with the process, but does stop the pain; relieves headaches, too; neuralgia, etc. Every drugstore has Midol.

Mrs. Richard J. Hamilton Guest Of Honor at Dinner Party Given by Club Leaders

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

It was a most delightful dinner party that the Congress of Clubs gave last night for Mrs. Richard J. Hamilton, of Philadelphia, president of the State Federation of Pennsylvania Women, who is making a five county visit in this part of the state. Covers were laid for about 40, among these being the official family of the Congress, the heads of departments and chairmen of committees, also Mrs. John M. Phillips, vice president of the State Federation; Mrs. Richard B. Perry, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. James G. Chalfant, district president, and the club editors of the newspapers.

Mrs. T. M. Stahlman presided displaying her usual wittiness and sense of the appropriate. To Mrs. George J. Campbell, first vice president, she assigned the duty of introducing the past presidents. Mrs. Ralph W. Johnston and Mrs. Carl E. Coslowsky, Mrs. W. H. Francies, second vice president, introduced the officers. Mrs. S. J. Cornett, the department heads and Mrs. R. T. Alexander, the committee chairmen. Mrs. Stahlman reserving for herself the introduction of the visitors.

Elsie Breese Mitchell, introduced as "director of the best choral in the state," sang two numbers happily choosing one by a Pittsburgh composer, Hazel Harnish. Mrs. H. D. Everett accompanied her. Mrs. J. Charles Wilson read several little spring verses of happy mood, and the beautiful invocation was by Mrs. H. C. Breidert. Last, of course, came Mrs. Hamilton's little speech of appreciation and, incidentally, she said only two senior and two junior clubs out of 230 which had replied to a query from her had reported a "bad year," although many have temporarily reduced their dues.

Mrs. Joseph Dury, in making her presidential report before the Sewickley Valley Woman's Club yesterday, commented on the fact that the entire year had gone according to schedule and that not one program had been changed. Other reports showed a successful year from every standpoint, with a full membership of 450 and the usual waiting list. The nominating committee's ticket, headed by Mrs. John Easton McKirdy, as president, was elected. In Mrs. McKirdy's absence, on account of illness, the gavel was accepted by the vice president, Mrs. R. M. Keeney.

Mrs. D. N. Bulford reviewed "American Beauty" by Edna Ferber and Mrs. Fisher's "Wat" by Harriet Leslie, and Mrs. Porter Brace reviewed Willa Cather's "Shadows on the Rock" at yesterday's meeting of the Tourists. Elsie Breese Mitchell sang, Mrs. H. D. Everett accompanying. Mrs. A. V. Crookston gave an excellent report of the recent Allegheny County publicity conference and passed on her information for the benefit of next year's publicity chairman. An all-day sewing for the blind was announced for Monday.

More than 100 members of the Monday Club of Carnegie attended the annual luncheon which was given yesterday in the Y. W. C. A. with the president, Mrs. Charles Barnum, in charge. The club trio sang, students from Pitt presented two plays, Mrs. W. W. Adams offered violin solos with Jack Bigham playing clarinet obligato and Mrs. John Bigham at the piano, and the High School Orchestra directed by Ray Florence completed the full program with several selections.

Mrs. W. B. Schiller Urges Family Aid Plan

Mrs. W. B. Schiller today added her support to the army of society women working in behalf of the family help family's plan as advocated by Senator Frank J. Harris.

Mrs. Schiller said:

"The human aspect of the family help-family plan should be its first appeal. It is hard to grasp the fact that the present destitution set down in figures, since it is not apparant to the casual eye, but go to any of the helping agencies and take the first 12 investigated cases and the stark reality of the situation will be revealed.

Mrs. Schiller

"It takes a little less than $8 per week over a period of three months, to take care of one family. A series of petty economies instituted in each household would accomplish relief for one family and satisfaction to the soul of the giver."

20th Century Club Hears Talk by Robert Raynolds

A new speaker came to the Twentieth Century Club yesterday and gave a philosophical discussion of The Universal Adventure. He was Robert Raynolds tall lean restless peasantly modest whose Brothers in the West won the 1931 Harper award.

Mr. Raynolds described "The Universal Adventure" as the search for reality and the differentiation between realism and reality by saying the former is the daily occupation, the rising in the morning and the lying down at night, the noise of the crowd, the touch of material stone, while reality is [illegible] in man which [illegible] the abyss between sensory [illegible] and good living, between the senses and the soul.

Christ, he said, makes life fuller for others, he remarked, using as an example the joy to be found in great literary work and in art. It is a wonderful, strenuous adventure and demands contact and [illegible] is a matter of the [illegible] has nothing to do with [illegible] he said.

TELL IT TO SALLY -:- -:- Follow This Unusual Feature Day by Day -:- -:- By SALLY MARTIN

Are Brainy Girls a Loss in Matrimonial Market?

Do gentlemen prefer saps?

Neva was beginning to wonder.

She was like that. Dad had taught her to be. So she tried to live up to his idea that ladies should be regular. She did her own chores and was a good, sympathetic pal, with no foolishness and no "temperament."

But to her horror the boys while they came and told her all their troubles—while they liked to go with her on hikes or have a lively game of tennis, took all their box-party and theater tickets to the dumb-bells' duffers down the street.

"Do boys really prefer that kind of a girl after all?" she moaned. We put the question up to the boys themselves and here's NORRY with plenty of answer. Do you agree with him?

PREFERS REGULAR GIRL

"Dear Sally—

"I'd like to answer Neva's letter. She wants to know if fellows prefer dumb, helpless girls or her kind, who know how to be good understanding chums and are able to do things for themselves now and then.

"Well, I'd like to give my opinion. I've gone out with both kinds, and give me the brainy girl every time! These baby-faced dolls give me a pain in the neck.

"Maybe they're fun to play around with now and then, but besides that, what are they good for? Can you depend on them? Usually not! Will they get in and help you when you're in a jam? Hell! You ask 'em! Can you talk to them without being bored to death? Nope! All they can do is coo and pet, and if you have any sense yourself you soon get sick and tired of it all.

"Now the regular egg doesn't mind a little petting, maybe, but she won't stand for any foolishness. She is staunch. She knows how to help a fellow and she isn't afraid to get in and do it, or to endure bad luck with him.

NOT A HANDICAP

"She isn't spoiled. She doesn't expect the world with a fence around it for nothing given by her. She isn't a weight on him when something goes wrong. She knows how to use her brains and her courage to work with him. Some boobs must imagine that she'll use her brains against him the way they talk and act, but that just shows how smart they are, no!

"Of course, no fellow likes a girl who is so capable that she goes hang around and does everything herself. He likes a girl who knows enough to know that he likes to do things for her, to let him open doors and do other little things to please her. He likes one who doesn't want to be the whole show and who doesn't act as if she thought she knew more than he. But then nobody likes a person who is a know-it-all whether it's another man or a woman. Girls don't like other girls like that, either.

"But I don't believe Neva is like that. I think her trouble is simply being too much one of them with the boys. Too unromantic. Too ready and waiting when they feel like calling. Too unconscious of them as fellows, if you get what I mean. So they don't think of her actually as a girl.

"Boys like girls they're not too sure of, girls who are well, coy. They like to work a little to get a girl's favor and friendship and finally love. A boy likes to feel that he has simply compelled 'em to notice him. Too much frank 'friendship' spoils that impression.

WRONG TECHNIQUE

"But as for the baby doll type well, any fellow with brains enough to come in out of the rain should know better than to take her seriously.

"That's the way I feel, and the way the fellows I pal around with feel. It may make some dumbell feel important to take on the job of looking after one of these helpless Janes, but the chances are he'll be mighty sick of his bargain before he's done with it. A neighbor of ours has a wife like that, and believe me! what he hasn't gone through and what she hasn't wangled out of him by putting on her helpless act! He never can save any money. He can't do anything that a man with a regular wife could do. None of that for me!

"If Neva will change her technique a little, be a little more hard to pal with for a while—a little stand-offish and not so easy to please—she'll find the boys will wake up and appreciate her as a girl. I'm sure.

"NORRY."

Sounds good to me, Norry. And I'll gamble there are a lot of other guys who see eye to eye with you.

How about it, Bill? Joe?

Good Life Is Always an Inspiration, Fay King's Tribute to Pious Women

By FAY KING

A good life is always an inspiration.

As a child I sometimes passed a small weather-beaten gray house where an aged colored woman always sat at the window reading her Bible.

Her hair was white as cotton and she was neat as a new pin. Besides her on the sill was a glass jar filled with bright flowers from her little garden.

One day I told her I purposely passed because it was so sweet to see her there. She was pleased and said she would pray for me.

Came that day when I passed to find the window closed, and I knew that she had gone to God.

The gentle, pious memory of her has remained with me throughout the years.

OFFICIAL SYSTEM As Adopted by Leading Authorities

By E. V. SHEPARD

Good vs. Bad Strategy

It is automatic that a two-suiter seldom plays well either at or against no-trumps. The hand below shows admirable defensive bidding strategy as opposed to bad offensive strategy.

The hand was played at the Knickerbocker Whist Club. Fourth hand made an opening bid of 1 No-Trump although his values fully justified binding 2-No Trumps. Perhaps the latter declaration would have given his partner more courage, and might have caused a different result. Z was an astute player. R. F. Sentner. He knew how poor defensive strength he held against a strong no-trumps and overcalled with a bid of 2-Clubs. A bid 3-Hearts and Y bid 3-Clubs. Quite properly B bid 3-No Trumps, rather than 3-Hearts. Encouraged by his partner's support Z ventured to declare 4-Clubs expecting to go down slightly, rather than allow opponents to score an almost certain game at no-trumps or hearts.

Of course A scarcely dared risk 4-Hearts. Had he done so it is probable that neither Y nor Z would have ventured a defensive declaration of 5-Clubs. What A should have done was to show his second long suit by bidding 4-Diamonds. B would then either have supported hearts or bid 4-No Trumps and he could have made five-odd at no-trumps against any probable defense—3 clubs, 4 hearts and 4 diamonds, 11 tricks total. At hearts it is probable that A-B would have lost to the three adversely held aces, and that in addition Y would have ruffed a spade and Z would have ruffed a diamond. No-trumps was what should have been played. When A failed to overcall the 4-clubs, it was natural for B to double, and for all to pass. Z became the declarer with a doubled contract of 4-Clubs, when his side was vulnerable.

The opening lead of A's fourth best heart drew the K from B. Z's Ace won the trick. The declarer led a spade to put dummy in the lead. Y's Ace of diamonds was led affording an opportunity to discard Z's last heart. Of course Z did not make the mistake of leading trumps—he crossed ruffed. The next four rounds went as follows: Z trumped a small diamond, Y trumped a spade, Z trumped another diamond, Y trumped another spade. Then Z trumped a heart and Y trumped a spade. Dummy's last heart was led and trumped, giving Z his tenth straight trick. Of course the last three tricks were taken by B's Ace, K and Q of clubs, but Sentner had made his four-odd doubled instead of allowing his adversaries to win 11 tricks at no trumps.

No opening lead possible for A to make could have resulted differently, but note how different results would have been had

Calling Cards

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I expect to be graduated from high school in June and I am wondering how I should have my calling cards printed. Would you advise Mary Elizabeth Jones, Miss Mary E. Jones or Mary E. Jones?

A READER.

None of these forms is the one that I would suggest. You should have Miss on your calling card and you should either spell out your middle name or omit it. For abbreviations are not in good form on visiting cards. So the form of your name should be either Miss Mary Elizabeth Jones or if you prefer Miss Mary Jones.

And don't make the cards printed—they must be engraved. It costs very little to have a plate made, and the cards are engraved from this plate. I suggest that you ask your engraver to show you the kind of engraving called "Script antique Roman." This is the most popular style now, and very lovely it is especially for girls and young people.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

No Need to Worry About 'Crick' in the Back at 50

A letter I received quite recently said this:

"I am a man 50 years of age and fear that the stiffness I have in my spine is a sign of approaching old age. My real fear, too, is that the slight trouble I have now may grow worse and make me a cripple. Can you reassure me?"

Dr. Copeland

There is little need to worry over these symptoms. The doctors give the trouble described by this man a big name but really it is bigger than the ailment deserves.

It is called "osteo-arthritis." As the name indicates, it is regarded as one of the signs of advancing age. But of course a man of 50 is not old by any means, and I am glad to say he need not worry over his trouble.

It is not at all uncommon for the joints of the body to show the effects of the wear and tear of life. In view of the construction of the body, it is really amazing that we do not more frequently discover the presence of many defective materials here and there. The strain caused by the many demands upon our tissues is sure to bring to light a weakening somewhere.

It is not uncommon to find a person well along in life who has what he called a "crick" in his neck or in his knees. There is a creaking sound on movement of the joint and a sensation of grating.

It has been well said that "misery loves company." Anyhow, it is reassuring to know that the symptom described is very, very common. Its victim has much company. Let me quote this from a recent writer on the subject:

In the joints of the lower spine of 60 to 70 per cent of all persons aged more than 50 years, slight arthritic changes can be detected by means of the X-ray, although the vast majority of these people are not in the least aware of their condition.

Let me emphasize that the symptom is not important. One may be unduly sensitive to it, but it is encouraging to know there is nothing about it to worry over. There need be no fear that the trouble will spread, or that it will result in serious crippling.

The symptoms should serve as a warning that good living is important. The benefits of hygienic living and proper eating should not be neglected.

Some of the effects of age may be distressing to our minds, but most of them can be accepted philosophically because they are unimportant in themselves. We may not be able to live to the century, but by proper care of our bodies we can be pretty comfortable to the end.

Broadcasts by Baseball Stars In 'Boost Pirates' Programs Help Open Season Here

Play ball!

Two broadcasts featuring baseball and radio stars mark the opening of the baseball season at Forbes Field. William E. Benswanger, president of the Pirates, heads a list of prominent figures including the Waners, Larry French, Steve Swetonic, Pie Traynor and Charles J. Doyle, baseball expert of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, in a "Boost the Pirates" program over WJAS tonight at 10:45. Jim Hughes, WJAS program director, introduces the speakers. The musical portion of the program is presented by Will Potter and the Band Moderne. Emma Bishop, pianist; Ernest Raboch, baritone, and Edward Kountz.

Mr. Benswanger

Members of both the Pirates and the St. Louis Cardinals are brought to the WCAE microphone by Harry Keck, sports editor of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, during his Trained Seals period on WCAE tomorrow night at 7. Doyle, also heard on this program, will engage the players in conversation centering about the sport.

Louis Sobol, New York Evening Journal columnist, pinch-hits for Walter Winchell, who has been ordered by his physician to take a complete rest, on that Dance Hour tonight at 10 on WCAE. Irving Rose's Orchestra, playing from St. Louis, and the Coon-Sanders Orchestra, from Chicago, furnish the music for the "magic carpet" listeners.

Program Pointers

PRISCILLA LONG, concert violinist of Montreal, Canada, returns to Pittsburgh to present a program from KDKA tonight at 8:30. Previously she broadcast from the pioneer station when she was touring the states, making personal appearances on the concert stage a year ago. The Men's Glee Club of the Teachers' College, Slippery Rock, presents a concert from WCAE today at 4:45.

Miss Long

After an absence of three weeks, KQV's Backstage Presentation from the Nixon Theater returns to the air at 7:45 with entertainment by the cast of "The Silver Domino," University of Pittsburgh's Cap and Gown Club show.

Ben Bernie greets the radio world from St. Louis at 9 over WJAS with a program including "Little Red Drum," which he repeats by popular request.

A real radio pioneer singer, Sarah Logan, who made her debut from KDKA in 1921, returns to the studios at 8 to present an all-request program.

Mrs. Phil Cook, wife of the well-known radio comedian, is interviewed by Allie Lowe Miles on WJAS at 8.

WCAE listeners are taken on an imaginary trip to Hawaii at 8 when Julia Sanderson, Frank Crumit and a guitar ensemble directed by Jack Shilkret are heard in a program of Hawaiian melodies.

Fan Fare

ALICE JOY, the Radio "Dream Girl," leaves the air temporarily when that quarter hour featuring Miss Joy, Old Hunch and Paul Van Loan and his orchestra is discontinued for the summer at the end of this month. Miss Joy's three-year-old daughter, Lois, incidentally, is showing increasing interest in radio, and practices with her mother occasionally, providing the correct atmosphere with a toy piano, upon which Lois sits a la Helen Kane, and a homemade tin can microphone.

Miss Joy

Alice Remsen, the contralto on that perfume hour, used to appear as a featured comic both in vaudeville and musical comedy. . . . Those Boswell Sisters have been known to plant empty match boxes and dummy cigaret lighters for their guests to fumble. . . . Col.

Uncle Bob, Betty Read Comics

There's a riot of fun on the air from WCAE tonight at 6 when Uncle Bob and Betty read the Sun-Telegraph comics.

George Seibel, dramatic and literary critic of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, gives a 15-minute talk on "Plays and Players" that is of interest to all lovers of the legitimate stage tonight at 7 from WCAE.

Stars heard on the Sun-Telegraph Nite Club of the Air, broadcast from WCAE at 11, include the harmonizing Lawson Sisters and Paul Gannon, tenor, featured with David Levin's orchestra and Herb McGee, master of ceremonies.

News flashes are given four times daily from the editorial rooms of the Sun-Telegraph by Louis L. Kaufman, Globe-Trotter of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News. He is on the air at 9:05 a. m., 12:15 p. m., 2:30 p. m. and 6:30 p. m.

Stoopnagle and Budd are enlisting people to wear eyeglasses in the event that grapefruit is served at dinner—to help unemployed opticians. . . . That Colonel also is compiling a scrapbook to end all scrapbooks but the ones written by Tony Wons. Paul Whiteman, who weighs only 185 pounds now, has found a new way to use his old suits. . . . He simply gives them to two other fellows.

Why PEOPLE FAIL —or SUCCEED!

Above may be seen Abraham Lincoln studying by the fire-light in his cabin. Lincoln is a perfect example of the importance of self-confidence. He realized his gaunt figure and unattractive features and ungainly personality. He simply determined to rise above all of these inferiorities and make a mark for himself. And the whole world knows he did.

Colgate University Professor Explains Important Part that Self-Confidence Plays in Our Lives

THE feeling of inferiority that unjustly haunts many persons is often responsible for the failure of many who really ought to be successful. The prevalence of these baleful inferiority feelings—or lack of confidence—among people in general, their origin, how they work and what can be done about them, is being investigated at the Colgate University Psychological Laboratory. A summary of results thus far, prepared by Professor D. A. Laird, director of the laboratory, has been compiled especially for The American Weekly. Be sure to look for this informative and enlightening article in next Sunday's American Weekly and find out if your success is being hampered by inferiority notions!

POLITICS

Independents' Sidestep In Ninth Explained.

—By MARK SHIELDS—

Considerable comment has surrounded the failure of the Independents to include on their legislative slate a candidate in the Ninth District, which is the City of McKeesport and the home of County Commissioner William D. Mansfield. One theory advanced was that the Independents were hesitant to test organization strength but no one conversant with politics attached any weight to that.

Mark Shields

In districts where it has much less opportunity of success the Independent organization has not been daunted, and has its public choices.

A more valid explanation may be that the Independents led by County Commissioner C. M. Barr, and the organization, headed by Senator James J. Coyne, both are backing the same candidate in McKeesport, and both are fighting the candidate of Mansfield. A slate showing that mingling of sentiment would hardly do though it would be more contradictory and complicated than what is going on in other districts, particularly within the organization.

The regulars from headquarters in William Penn Hotel are backing James K. Ruby and so, it is reported, are substantial groups in the Independent faction, including some who participated enthusiastically in the big Independent meeting in McKeesport Saturday night.

Regulars to Support McClure Indicated

Developments of the past few days indicate that James H. McClure, veteran member of the Tenth District, who was suitable to County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern, long-time Independent leader, as a potential candidate for Auditor General, but who was not indorsed by those who framed the Independent slate (McGovern not playing any part in that), is to be supported by the regular organization in his district. It is also evident that some Independents in the Tenth District will give some assistance to McClure.

Answers to the questionnaire sent out by the Sun-Telegraph asking legislative candidates whether they were for repeal of the Snyder act, repeal of the blue laws, local option on Sunday observance and a proposal that increased utility rates should not go into effect prior to a hearing and decision of the Public Service Commission continue. There are, as well, a few who say errors had been made in the way they were recorded.

John N. Williams in the Fourth District was recorded as being "No" on the fourth question. Williams, on the Independent slate, is for revision of the public service law in the interest of the consumer, which, of course, means he opposes increases in rates without hearing and decision by the P. S. C.

Thomas E. Gillespie in the Twelfth District was omitted, when he voted "Yes" on all four questions.

Anthony Lucas, in the Eighth District, is for local option on both the Snyder act and blue laws, and is for legislation to prevent rate increases without an official decision.

John F. Gloeckner clarifies his answer to approve repeal of the Snyder act.

John M. O'Rourke, Twelfth District, was recorded as a Democrat in answering all questions in the affirmative, but was not recorded as a Republican. He is in the Republican primary, on the organization slate.

John R. O'Keefe, First District, answered each question in the affirmative, but was inadvertently omitted from the tabulation.

Kane Sees Benefit In Snyder Act Repeal

Leonard P. Kane, Fourth District, feels sentiment in Pennsylvania is against the Eighteenth Amendment, and that no law should remain on the books contrary to the wishes of a majority of the electors. He believes repeal of the Snyder act would eliminate much present corruption and extortion. He is against a commercialized Sunday, but is for modification of the blue laws, and then local option, to permit recreation in the afternoon hours. He is in the affirmative on the fourth question.

John J. Kane, in the Sixth District, is for repeal of the Snyder act and blue laws, and is indorsed by the Independents as favoring revision of the public utility law.

Frank E. Finley, in the Tenth District, is against repeal of the Snyder act and blue laws, but is for local option on the latter and for legislation prohibiting rate increases without official decision.

The following candidates in replies received after the first recording last week, express themselves affirmatively on all four questions:

Edward T. Foster, Second; James A. Tiernan, Third; Harry V. Bair, Twelfth; G. F. Craddock, Tenth, and Chares A. Bahl, Thirteenth.

Edward A. Gearing, Fourth, leaves the first question to his constituents, and is "Yes" on the other three.

John B. Sullivan, Sixth, is for modification of the blue laws and takes the affirmative of the other three questions. F. H. Genet, Sixth, is for repeal of the Snyder act and restrictions in the increase of utility rates, but opposes tinkering with the blue laws.

SECOND RELIEF CHECK ADDS $322,307

COUNTY GIVEN TAX FEE REPORT

Delinquent Collector's Commission $1,200,000 In 8 Years, Audit Shows

The Main & Co. audit of the Delinquent Tax Collector's office records, showing the tremendous sums paid that official yearly in commissions and penalties, was presented to the County Commissioners today. The report stated that approximately $1,200,000 had been collected by the office as its share of commissions and penalties paid the county during the eight-year period from 1924 to 1931.

It revealed that from 1924 to 1927, $268,139.38 was paid to the collector, and from 1928 to 1931, inclusive, $487,104.96.

Against this income, expenditures of $108,635.39 were listed from 1924 to 1927, and $155,541.20 from 1928 to 1931.

In 1924, the net commissions, after deduction of office and other expenses, totaled $50,560 and in 1931 jumped to $149,331. Expenses in 1924 were $25,240, increasing to $43,066 in 1931.

'AGENCY' HEAD HELD HERE

Accused by police of engaging in a collection agency "racket," Frank Stone, 26, of Chicago, was held for investigation by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg in Central Police Court today.

Richard Moderne, of Crafton, one of two men who answered an advertisement, testified Stone had shown him a statement form for collection of overdue accounts. On the reverse side in small type was the stipulation that the "U. S. National Adjustment Company," of Chicago, with which Stone said he was connected, was to receive 50 per cent of collections, Moderne testified.

Stone testified the Chicago Chamber of Commerce had indorsed the company's plan. Moderne said Stone had told him the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce would soon add its indorsement.

Detectives declared the Pittsburgh Chamber officials knew nothing of the plan. Stone was arrested yesterday in the Fort Pitt Hotel.

BEER TAX DRIVE SHUNNED HERE

A nation-wide "beer for taxation" demonstration in support of a tax on beer to help balance the national budget received scant attention here.

Mayor Charles H. Kline, to whom the proposal was made by Mayor James J. Walker, of New York, its sponsor, said he "didn't intend to do anything about it."

The proposal also was made to Mayor George H. Lysle, of McKeesport; Mayor John R. Mackey, of Clairton, and Mayor James S. Crawford, of Duquesne. All are said to have taken the matter under consideration.

Investigate or Be Investigated, Is New Slogan

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

New slogan in politics is investigate the other guy before he investigates you.

The boys are all putting in electric refrigerators so they can snowball each other in hot weather.

That post-mortem on the street of missing investors shows both the Republicans and Democrats know enough to grab a big spoon when the gravy dish registers high tide.

They all milked the cow. Then they tied a knot in its tail so they would know it the next time.

The boys who are supposed to protect us put the finger on us. We know what's wrong with the country. It's too close to the city.

Nothing unusual about big politicians tossing us on the spears. It ain't the first time the sheep dog had wool in his teeth.

It turned out to be a pip of an investigation. Even the innocent bystanders are guilty.

RESCUE WOMAN, 80, AT FIRE

An 80-year-old woman was led to safety by her grandchildren when fire swept through her home at 419 Natchez street, Mt. Washington, early today with an estimated loss of $4,000.

Three other children were carried to safety by their parents.

The fire was discovered by Henry Caprelli after he and his wife had been awakened by the cries of their son, Guy, 11.

Caprelli aided his son and two daughters, Marie, 8, and Helen, 3, to the street and then awakened other occupants of the building.

Mrs. Agnes Barbell, 80, who resided on the second floor, was assisted to the street by her grandchildren, Mary Spain, 15, and her two sisters, Grace, 13, and Angeline, 10. The parents of the two children, Mr. and Mrs. Nick Spain, were not at home. Spain is a former city employe. A valuable hunting dog owned by Spain was suffocated.

PRICE WAR CUTS PASSOVER FISH

On the eve of the Jewish Feast of the Passover a price war in the Hill district today toppled the cost of fish to the lowest level in years, dealers said.

One firm received 10 tons of fish from Lake Erie and quoted best yellow salmon at 25 cents a pound compared with $1.25 two years ago and 65 cents last year. Carp, blue salmon and perch sold at 10 cents a pound retail, as against a former low figure of 40 cents.

During the seven-day passover beginning tomorrow night, fish is the favorite dish. Hundreds flocked to the markets today.

Monte Carlo Casino Drops First Dividend

MONTE CARLO, April 19.—(INS.)—The $7,000,000-year business of the famous Casino here, to which gamblers and pleasure-seekers from throughout the world have come for many years to indulge in games of chance, has "been hit."

For the first time in its history the Casino Company will pass a dividend, it was decided at a directors' meeting. Profits for the year just closed were only about two-thirds of those of the preceding year. Dividends usually had been from 100 to 200 per cent.

COUNTY DELAYS DISTRIBUTION OF FUNDS

Commissioners Must Pass On Talbot Cash Division; Family Aid Drive Pushed

A check for $322,307.18, the second installment of funds for direct relief here as provided by the Talbot bill, was expected at the office of the County Treasurer today. This raises the total now available here to $483,463. It is to be divided between the County Poor Board and the City Welfare Department.

Although there is no meeting of the county commissioners until a week from today, Attorney Mortimer B. Lesher, special counsel to the commissioners, said he would try and have the commissioners approve the division of money at once so there would be no delay in getting it to the needy.

MANSFIELD ABSENT

Commissioner W. D. Mansfield is out of the city. Attorney Lesher intimated he probably would have Commissioner C. M. Barr, the only member available for a meeting, approve the division and then submit it for approval to Commissioner C. C. McGovern in Valley Hospital, Scawickley. The division is made on the basis of unemployment in the city and county.

Twelve additional carloads of government flour are expected at the Arsenal railroad terminal tomorrow, completing the first allotment of 600 tons ordered by the Allegheny County Emergency Association.

An additional hundred families were provided for in reports made today at the luncheon of the Family-Help-Family campaign in the William Penn Hotel. To date a total of 2,962 families have been provided for. There are still 25,038 families to be cared for.

Speakers at today's luncheon were Leo Griffith, the Rev. Father Thomas F. Coakley and Msgr. Martin Ryan, of St. Brigid's Church.

County Controller Robert G. Woodside announced that the 27 employes in his office had each subscribed one day's pay out of four monthly pays. This will total $1,000 and provide for 10 families.

It was reported the Alling and Cory Company, North Side, was the first concern to report 100 per cent subscriptions from its employes. This concern contributed $700.

DR. EWERS TALKS

"With 165,000 persons out of work we are sitting on top of a virtual volcano without realizing it. I am against the mildness and patience with which every one regards conditions. We are up against a hard reality. Every penny of the fund you are raising will go to relieve destitution, without a penny of overheard—but that's not important, after all. This is no time for quibbling or criticism.

"We are facing our third winter of discontent. It is bringing about a terrible disintegration of personality; men are losing their self respect, and effects are being brought about which will take a quarter century to overcome. We are face to face with reality. People are in need and we must help them, whether we have much or little."

Two Members Added To Duquesne Faculty

Dr. Raymond J. Worley and Prof. Lincoln R. Gibbs have been added to the Duquesne University faculty, according to an announcement today. Dr. Worley, present business administration head at Langley High School, will take up his duties in September. Prof. Lincoln, now at Antioch College, will teach English courses at the summer school.

POLICE THWART STORE ROBBERS

Attempted burglary of two uptown and two downtown stores was frustrated by police early today.

Summoned to the store of Joseph Levitt & Co., 911-913 Fifth avenue, police discovered holes torn in the wall between the Levitt store and the J. J. Sapper Company, clothiers, adjoining. The thieves had evidently been at work some time, a narrow passageway between the two buildings cloaking their operations.

Police believe the burglars are members of the same gang that looted the Al Berk clothing store, nearby, of $5,000 worth of merchandise several days ago.

Attracted by the crash of glass, a downtown patrolman hurried to the Interiors, Inc., 110-112 Third avenue, early today and discovered a large plate glass window broken. Search of the building failed to reveal the perpetrator or if anything was missing. Police said the burglar had evidently escaped through the General Welding Company adjoining.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., April 19.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Every time the government suggests putting a tax on something, the manufacturers of that object rush to Washington like "Coxey's Army," declaring that it's an injustice. No matter what the tax is put on, the man that makes it don't pay—it's the bird that buys it. But we have never yet heard of a "purchasers lobby" rushing down. Course the auto makers feel that they are being discriminiated against, and it looks like they are. Everything we buy should have its equal proportion of tax, outside of cheap food, and cheap clothes. There won't finally be anything left of Congress' tax bill but the envelope they sent it over to the Senate in. Yours, WILL.

STAR GAZERS SEEK ARCTURUS

HOW ARCTURUS 'WILL WORK'

Light From Distant Sun to Start World's Fair

The star Arcturus, whose light rays will start the World Fair at Chicago next year, is already attracting many curiosity seekers to the Allegheny Observatory to look at it through the telescope.

When the Columbian Exposition closed in 1892, the light from Arcturus was just starting its 40-year journey of 240 trillion miles to our earth. Next year that light will be picked up by a photo-electric cell, after passing through the huge 40-inch Yerkes refracting telescope at Williams Bay, Wis., and then carried to Chicago where it will start the World's Fair.

Dr. Frank C. Jordan, Director of the Allegheny Observatory explained:

"Arcturus is a sun like our own, but many times larger. Our sun is a mere dwarf, being roughly only 886 thousand miles in diameter as compared with the 15 million of Arcturus. It gives off 300 to 400 times as much light as our sun."

Arcturus is a very bright star that can be seen with the naked eye in the eastern sky in the evening. It is south east of the handle tip of the big dipper.

Flashes Badge, Seizes Gems And Escapes in Chase; 2 Gas Stations Robbed

Police today were seeking a robber, who, posing as a policeman, scooped up 26 diamonds valued at $10,000 from the jewelry repair shop of Carl Meding, 82 South Nineteenth street, late yesterday.

The man, who had visited the shop on two previous occasions under the pretext of buying a ring, flashed what Meding said looked like a policeman's badge, took the gems and escaped in an automobile driven by an accomplice. Meding gave chase in his car but was outdistanced.

A bandit trio who held up two Downe's Service Stations, one twice within 20 hours, also were being sought by police today.

Early yesterday the trio drove into the station at 1968 East Ohio street, and stole $10 after forcing Richard Schweiger, the attendant, to lie on the floor. Last night three men declared to be the same robbers, visited the station and robbed Edward Kelly, an employe, of $12.

Several hours later another Downe station at 1000 Columbus avenue was reported held up by the same bandits, who took $8 after threatening H. C. Brindle, an attendant, with revolvers.

Wild Men Held Safer Than Gangsters

BOSTON, April 19. (INS)—If it came to a choice between wild Africans and American gangsters, Emil Chastagner, French West African missionary, would take the former.

After his arrival here from West Africa, Chastagner said:

"I think we are safer right in the middle of the Mossi tribe, and there were nearly 2,000,000 of them around us, than we will be here, with all your gangsters and racketeers. The natives are loyal once you have won their friendship, but from all reports you can't trust these modern criminals very far."

Chastagner was en route today to Los Angeles with his wife and their two small sons to spend a year's furlough.

Film Stars' Brother Charged As Fugitive

LOS ANGELES, April 19. (AP)—Jack Noonan, brother of Sally O'Neill and Molly O'Day, film actresses, was arraigned in Municipal Court yesterday on a charge of escaping from a county road camp last November. NOTED ITALIAN FLIER KILLED

ORBETELLO, Italy, April 19. (AP)—Lieut. Col. Guascone Guasconi, one of Italy's foremost speed pilots, who participated in the Schneider Cup races at Norfolk, Va., in 1926, was killed, with two other men, when a seaplane plunged into the water here during a demonstration flight yesterday.

The other dead were Engineer Domenico Furlan, of the Fiat Automobile Company, and Naval Mechanic Vittorio Mietta. Five army and navy officers who completed the group in the plane were injured.

Witnesses said they believed the accident was caused by a maneuvering error while the plane was performing for the benefit of a detachment of cadets at the Naval Academy. Flying at high speed, it struck shallow water in a lagoon used as a naval airport and turned over.

Better Care Urged For Child Cripples

ROCHESTER, N. Y., April 19. (AP)—A plea for a broader program of education for crippled children was made here by speakers at the opening session yesterday of the convention of the International Society for Crippled Children. Edgar F. Allen, Elyria, O., founder of the society, was re-elected president.

William J. Bogan, superintendent of Chicago public schools, urged greater education for the handicapped child, pointing out that "the leadership of a Steinmetz may be worth more to the nation than a dozen athletes."

JUDGES STUDY BAR REPORT

The first report submitted by the Bar Association to President Judge James F. Macfarlane following a 10-month investigation of lawyers accused of "ambulance chasing," it is expected, will be discussed by all of the judges of the Allegheny County Court soon.

It was learned several of the accused attorneys some time ago were willing to sign statements of guilty if granted immunity from disbarment proceedings, but just how such suggestion was received could not be learned. Lawyers familiar with the subject regard the entire matter as one for the court.

Pending action by the judges, no one will discuss the status of the case, on the ground that it would be unethical.

HURLERS AT PEAK AGAINST PIRATES

THERE CAN BE no alibis for a defeat in which a club is shut out, but it can be said for the Pirates that they were the victims of a couple of baseball's queer breaks in encountering two Cincinnati pitchers just when the latter were having the best days they had ever known. The shutout administered by Silas Johnson Saturday was the first ever pitched by him in the majors, and the blank dealt by Ray Kolp yesterday was that flinger's first in two years and only the third in his big-show career. Last year Kolp pitched only two complete games, and yesterday's number was only his twelfth complete contest since he entered the fast set.

Ray Kolp

The extent to which the flingers are ruling the situation this spring may be judged from the fact that no fewer than 10 shutouts were turned in during the first seven days of the season—by Johnson, Vance, Holley, Schumacher, Kolp and Phelps in the National, and Crowder, Gray, Weaver and Coffman in the American, not counting nine runless innings by MacFayden, who was nosed out in the tenth round.

THE PIRATES FIGURE they are due for a break from the weather man for the opening of the season at Forbes Field tomorrow afternoon, in view of the wretched luck they had in connection with the home curtain-raising in each of the last two years. On each occasion the opening game had to be postponed twice.

After two innings had been played with the Reds on April 23, 1930, snow halted the inaugural proceedings. Cold weather kept the clubs idle again the following day. That wiped out the entire short series, and the Bucs had to open with a different club, the Cardinals, on the 25th. Last year, rain, snow and cold weather prevented the locals from meeting the Cubs on the first two days scheduled, April 22 and 23, and the legal season was not put under way until the 24th.

RABBIT MARANVILLE says that if he had been breaking into the big baseball show this year instead of in 1912, he wouldn't have had a chance of lasting even through the five or six weeks of the training season.

The little shortstop of the Braves observes that the day of the small man in the majors has passed. He counts Sparky Adams and Andy High as the only midgets remaining besides himself, and suspects that High gets by on his last name.

"MY FIVE FEET five inches is almost a foot short of the standard by which they measure their big league prospects these days," Maranville remarks. "Of course they do concede an inch or two if a fellow shows exceptional ability, but unless you stretch skyward six feet or better, or are pretty clever at traveling on stilts, you'd better stick to the hay, grain and feed business. Babe Ruth and the introduction of the lively ball were responsible for this. When Babe showed what a big man could do to that lively ball the demand developed for other big men who might do the same thing. But the deadened ball they're using in our league now may give the short and snappy boys a chance. It is bringing back the old inside game, and all-around skill, irrespective of size, will count for more than in recent years.*

Buddy Ensor

THE SUCCESSFUL START that Buddy Ensor has just made at Jamaica, after his reinstatement by the Jockey Club following a suspension lasting eight years, convinces racing experts in the East that he will be as good as ever if he only watches his habits.

Ensor never was known to commit a dishonest act in racing, and his work in the saddle never was detrimental to the turf. But he failed to stick to what are known as rules of training in his personal habits, and it was his misbehavior in that respect on and off the tracks that caused the powers to keep him on the ground for so long after half a dozen short suspensions.

EIGHTEEN MONTHS OF good conduct convinced the stewards that Buddy had reformed, and his reinstatement followed. Now he's riding again. He's 32, but as alert and spry as he was a dozen years ago, weighs only 106, and promises to keep right on with the brilliant career that was interrupted in 1924.

Prominent trainers and others pronounce Ensor the greatest race rider they ever saw. His seat and hands are perfect, he thinks and acts quickly, is a superb judge of pace, and though he can't lift tired horses along like Laverne Fator, he has plenty of nerve, can sting with a whip without hurting, and no horse under him is ever beaten until he has passed the judges.

BILL ESSICK, former big leaguer, now scouting for the Yankees, on the Coast, is devoting his time to college players out there. He sent up Outfielder Jesse Hill, of Southern California, whom the Yanks have farmed out to Newark, and reports that he now sees three other good college prospects, all pitchers, in Peterson, of California; Winter, of Southern California, and Buchanan, of Southern California. Winter, a right-hander, with another year of college ahead of him, is rated the best of the trio. Two well-known football stars whom Essick has been watching are Orv Mohler and Garrett Arbelbide, of Southern California.

ESSICK SAYS MOHLER is the best college infielder he has seen. He finds hitting possibilities in Arbelbide, but reports him awkward in the field. However, the Yankee scout declines to commit himself definitely, because he prefers to wait a while longer to note the effects of football playing on their legs. In this connection, Essick announces himself as firmly opposed to football for collegians who want to go in for baseball.

"It's the legs that count in baseball," he says, "and football injuries have ruined many a fine diamond prospect. Mohler has another year of football to play, and Arbelbide's legs are already bad."

RUMORS THAT THE annual football game between Notre Dame and Southern California, one of the annual events of national interest, might be dropped, were discounted by the friendly feeling in evidence during Jess Harper's recent visit to Los Angeles. Southern California officials gave a luncheon in his honor, many alumni of both schools were present, and the manner in which future contests was discussed left no doubt that the series will be continued.

Jess Harper.

Harper pronounced the series the greatest ever played, said Notre Dame was very anxious to see it continued, and expressed the hope that so fine a spirit could be built around these games that this feature would be talked of and written about to the same extent as the contests themselves.

HARPER MADE IT known that he has no use for the football coach who accepts a five-year contract with one college and then drags out of it to sign with another. Nor for the university that flirts with a coach whom it knows is tied up to a long-term contract. The Notre Dame athletic director also came out in flat-footed fashion against moving pictures of football games, declaring that they reveal too much of a team's inside stuff. He had quite a discussion with Howard Jones on the matter. Jones would not take a stand one way or the other. The Southern California coach said he wouldn't study the offensive and defensive strategy of the films if the other fellow didn't do it. But he intends to protect himself.

HUB NINE COPS PATRIOT'S DAY GAME, 6-5

BOSTON, April 19.—(AP)—The Boston Red Sox won their first game in five starts of the current American League race today, defeating the New York Yankees, 6-5, in the morning engagement of a Patriot's Day doubleheader.

Babe Ruth took another day of rest from baseball on account of the cold which has incapacitated him since yesterday. Although he had expected to return to the Yankee's lineup for the two games today, Ruth still was confined to bed at his hotel room.

The Bambino and Mrs. Ruth elected to return to their home in New York this afternoon.

The Red Sox knocked Johnny Allen out of the box in the second inning and after the Yanks tied the score in the seventh, Pickering's single and Oliver's double produced the winning run.

Home runs by Bill Dickey and Earl Combs featured the third inning for the Yanks. The score:

PITT AND NAVY SIGN PACT

By JESS CARVER

Dr. Jock Sutherland, taciturn head coach of football at Pitt, may now sit back and figure the most suitable ways and means of beating the Navy, for next year, which will be 1933 if this old world stays together that long, after a lapse of 16 years, the Panthers and Middies are going to go to rags here in the Pitt Stadium.

The following year, the teams will clash again, on a date and at a site to be selected later. Next year's game will be played October 14.

Athletic Director W. Don Harrison, in making the announcement of the resumption of relations with Annapolis, said that the Pitt and Navy "B" teams, which battled to a scoreless tie at Annapolis last fall, would play again this year.

In five previous clashes with the Sailors, Pitt has taken down three triumphs, suffered one defeat and played one tie. In 1912, the Navy won, 13-6. The following year, a scoreless deadlock resulted and in 1914 Pitt won, 16-6. The season following, Pop Warner turned his crack '15 eleven loose and walloped the Middies, 47-12 and in 1916, the famous Panther machine of that day nosed out a 20-to-19 victory.

The series with the Navy will supplant the one of the same length with Army, which will be completed this fall with a game in New York.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: THE ISLAND CREATORS OF THE PACIFIC—About half a day's journey from Tulaji, the principal port of the Solomon group in the Pacific, lies the island of Malaita, which is divided into two halves, Big Mala and Little Mala. It is the abode of the devil dancers. The inhabitants' noses, foreheads and ears frequently are decorated with flowers which they insert in holes pierced in the skin. Along the northeastern coast of Big Mala there is a coral reef extending for more than 20 miles. Within that reef are 33 artificial islands constructed by the hand of man. The building material was coral rock which natives quarried from the bottom of the lagoon, towing it on floating rafts of logs to the building site. The official name of the artificial islands is "Fortified Islands." Many of these islands now have trees, which sprang from accidental driftwood. It is not known what impelled the builders to construct the islands. All explanations are merely conjectural. THE DEATH-SPELLING BONE—The black fellows are the aboriginal Australian natives. As I visited the native settlement on Botany Bay, where Capt. Cook landed in 1770, I was shown a specimen of the pointing bone. It was inscribed in ancient characters, the meaning of which was explained to me. Steeped as the aborigine formerly was in witchcraft and superstition, it was sufficient when a native seized the bone and pointed it at an enemy to cause the pointee to sit down in silence and die within a short time. The bone also was used by the witch doctor to discover a sneak thief, much as a divining rod is used today. The more emancipated natives near the seacoast no longer fear the pointing bone, but there are tribes in the Australian bush on whom the bone still has its lethal effect. THE WORLD'S LONGEST FENCE—John R. Collison, who recently died in Australia at the age of 85, imported the first pair of pet rabbits into the Commonwealth. Unchecked by any natural enemy, the rabbits bred so prolifically that they became the greatest agricultural pest of the Lone Continent. To cope with this menace, a barrier of fine meshed wire was erected, running from the Gulf of Carpentaria to the corner of South Australia and along the boundary between New South Wales and Queensland to the sea. Over this territory, which is more than 3,000 miles long, there are more than 16,000 miles of "rabbit proof." The section known as Rabbit Fence No. 1 stretches more than 1,139 miles across Western Australia and is considered the longest single stretch of fence in the world. THE LAUGHING JACKASS—The Laughing "Jackass" is a corruption of the kookaburra's Latin name "gigas," meaning the giant kingfisher. It announces morning, noon and sunset by a curious gurgling laugh, unlike the note of any other bird. The kookaburra is about the size of a crow. They are quite numerous in Australia and enjoy the protection of the Australians because they are destructive to snakes and other vermin.

TOMORROW: THE MOST PROLIFIC SEED.

HAFEY SIGNS CONTRACT

CINCINNATI, April 19.—(AP)—Charles P. "Chick" Hafey signed a year's contract and became a full-fledged member of the Cincinnati Reds today.

He did go—right out to Redland Field for some batting practice before leaving with the rest of the Red squad for Chicago and another series with the Cubs, tomorrow.

Comiskey Estate Sued by Relatives

CHICAGO, April 19.—(INS)—Claims were filed today against the estate of the late Charles A. Comiskey, which was inventoried at $1,829,707.

The owner of the Chicago White Sox died intestate, leaving everything to his son, J. Louis Comiskey. The claimants are Marie Bernoudy, 20, and her brother Alfred, 29, children of Mrs. Mabel Prendergast, a niece of Mrs. Comiskey.

SPORT VIGNETTES

One more day and the greatest thrill for every American boy, comparable only to the coming of a circus, will be with us—the opening of another big league baseball season in the home town. . . . The Pirates meet the World Champion St. Louis Cardinals, with whom they broke even in St. Louis last week. . . . For a brief few weeks at least the hope springs eternal in every human breast that the home team will win the pennant. . . . Later, when the wide open spaces appear in the standing of the clubs, the dream fades. . . . But each new opening is like the dawn of a new day. . . . Before the disappointment of rude realization of shortcomings all of us may indulge in fond hopes of triumph. . . . Sometimes the lowly team rises to great heights, the least expected contender goes on to win the championship. . . . There always remains the memory of the Boston Braves, who came from last place in July to win the National League pennant and then end the reign of the Philadelphia Athletics in four straight games in the World Series of 1914—lo, 18 years ago already!

Times don't change so much, after all. . . . It was only 135 years ago last night that Paul Revere was taken for that famous ride upon a prancing steed. . . . The National senior boxing championships and Olympic tryouts will be staged in New York's Madison Square Garden on May 4-5-6, instead of on April 27-28-29, as at first planned. . . . Derided in the past because of his poor batting as against his superb fielding, Gus Suhr returned home today a hero because of his fine stickwork in the first two series of the year, in St. Louis and Cincinnati. . . . Funny how the crowd goes after anyone who has made a hit.

When the Nuss Girls' bowling team, of Homestead, defeated the Rendezvous Girls, of Washington, D. C., in their inter-city match here a few nights ago with a total of 1533 pins, they came within 34 pins of the world record set by a team in Washington last year. . . . And they rolled with wooden pins lacking rubber bands, a type used in the East, but unfamiliar here. . . . 'Tis rumored that the new manager of Buck McTiernan, local middleweight, will be Jack Barry, of Erie, former local boxer, who now handles Frankie Bolarski. . . . Always truth will out, to haunt those who seek to hide it. . . . For instance, we now learn that the real name of Henri Firpo, the Louisville middleweight, is Henry Hintleman — HARRY KECK.

BRAND KEEPS GOLF POST

By VERN SWARTSEAGER

Fred Brand, Republican veteran, instructor at the Allegheny County Club, was elected to serve another term as president of the Tri-State Chapter, Professional Golfers' Association of America, at the annual meeting held last night in the Keystone Athletic Club.

Charley Manning, Shannopin pro, and Jim Dwyer, of Nemacolin, again are to serve as vice presidents, while the old standbys, Dave McKay, of the Pittsburgh Field Club, remains as the secretary-treasurer's chair.

Plans were outlined by Chairman of the Golf Committee E. Vincent Eldred, of Highland, for a more extensive program this year, with tournaments twice monthly for the members of the paid brigade. The match play championship, won by Perry Del Vecchio, of Greensburg, last year (the medal for which was presented last night), also is to be a part of the slate, while a big tournament for charity may be held. Other members of the golf committee include Jack Kennedy, of Fox Chapel; Emil Loeffler, of Oakmont; Horace Brand, of Uniontown, and the aforesaid Dwyer.

GIBSON NAMES SWETONIC AS PITCHER

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Back in their home port after a nine-week excursion that took them to the Pacific Coast and back, the Pittsburgh Pirates, under the leadership of George Gibson, were all set for their opening home game of the 1932 season at Forbes Field tomorrow afternoon when the St. Louis Cardinals help the Corsairs pry off the lid.

Steve Swetonic

The Pirates arrived home from Cincinnati this morning and after a short respite gathered at Forbes Field to engage in a brisk two-hour workout that found all hands on deck with the exception of John Niggeling, who was left in Cincy to recover from a stomach ailment.

SWETONIC TO PITCH

Following the session at Forbes Field, Manager Gibson announced that Steve Swetonic would be the mound choice against the Cardinals in the home inaugural tomorrow afternoon. Bill Harris and Ervin Brame will be kept in reserve. Hallahan or Derringer will oppose the Bucos.

The Pirate skipper indicated that he would start the same line-up that faced the Cards and Reds in the first two engagements of the season. The Pirate catcher depends on what style of pitching they will face tomorrow. If a southpaw is on the mound, Finney or Brenzel will be behind the bat, otherwise Grace will do the receiving.

BATTERYMEN HERE

Jimmy Wilson, star Cardinal catcher, and several of the St. Louis pitchers, already were on the scene of activities, arriving early this morning. They were quartered at the Schenley Hotel. The remainder of the St. Louis squad will pull into town early tomorrow morning.

Members of the Pirates were elated with the condition of Forbes Field on their return to the Oakland park. Everything was in shipshape for the inaugural. The Pirates staged a long batting drill which extended for more than an hour. The infield, composed of Traynor, Thevenow, Piet and Suhr, also was given a tough workout, Vaughan replaced Thevenow after a spell.

The Pirates came home with a string of three victories and four defeats in their seven battles staged to date. They were all mixed up yesterday when they failed to make their bats click while competing against the offerings of Ray Kolp.

Patrons in attendance at tomorrow's game will be concentrated on the young players whom they will be watching for the first time. Although few of these rookies are apt to swing into action, they will be on display, and as they have been the subject of much favorable comment in the press their movements will be studied closely.

HERMAN LEADS ATTACK

The Buccos were extremely anxious to return home with a victory that would have put them in a spot beyond the .500-.500 margin, but Howley's Hustlers played bangup ball behind the airtight pitching of Ray Kolp and the Rhinelanders landed their second shutout victory in three days. The score was 5 to 0.

Babe Herman brought most of the drama into the contest in the OLD Marsh smokers . . . new Marsh smokers all agree that the new Seasoned-in-Cedar Marsh is one fine smoke.

The Marsh is a good smoke because we do everything humanly possible to make it a good smoke. Even the tobacco is aged for three full years before it is used. The most modern and sanitary methods of manufacture are used. And now the Seasoned-in-Cedar innovation adds that last touch of perfection which will make you like a Marsh better than ever.

All Marsh Stogies are wrapped in Cellophane Flavor-Guards to protect their Seasoned-in-Cedar goodness—to keep them fresh—to guard against breakage in your pocket.

ELDER TO LEAD WILKINSBURG BALL CLUB

By TOM BIRKS

The chances of the Wilkinsburg Murs in the Greater Pittsburgh League race have been increased by the announcement by Manager Monty Courage that Pete Elder, for many years one of the outstanding sandlot managers of the district, will lead the team on the field this season.

Elder, with a reputation gained through smart handling of the Universal team some years ago, is a smart leader, and his fighting tactics will turn the tide of many ball games to the Murs.

Manager Courage is lining up a fine collection of material. Renkey, Rankin and Healy probably will carry the burden of the pitching.

TRAPPE AT SHORT

Naturally the infield will be built around Trappe, one of the classiest shortstops in the district. Al Ringer will be back on the initial sack. Linhart, one of the smartest pitchers ever to wear a glove around North Bessemer, will be on hand, and Clarke, with Edgewood last season, will be a member of the infield.

The outfield finds Jerry McKelvey, Manager Courage and Boots Shoop chasing flies. Glenn Miller, Track and Hanley will fight it out for the regular catcher job. Courage will also have two boys from Universal, Sabock and Radovitch, both capable infielders, trying out for jobs.

Practice sessions are going to be held every evening at the Hunter street grounds, and on April 30 will find an independent game being played before the team swings into the league campaign.

The Crafton-Ingram Church League will hold its first pre-season smoker tonight in the assembly rooms of the Crafton Presbyterian Church. With 13 years of organization back of it, the oldest sandlot league in the district is looking for another banner year.

PIRATES HOME FOR OPENER

eighth when he connected for a homer with two of his mates on the sacks. The round-tripper put the ball game on the ice as the Reds went into the ninth with a five-run lead, and Kolp was master of the situation.

Larry French, often a victim of a homer in the part of the wild-swinging Babe, was the target for Herman's sock in the eighth. During his Dodger days, Babe gave Larry many things to think about and he is starting early on French as he does his stuff for Dear Old Cincy.

One of the worst fielding days Tommy Thevenow has experienced since he joined the Pirates saw Tommy in the position of helping the enemy to all five of their runs. Thevenow was charged with three misplays, each of which led to a run or more. His first error was recorded for his alleged failure to cover second on a throw from Grace on an attempted theft by Douthit. Later he fumbled to open the way for another run and in the eighth his wild throw set the stage for Herman's whack for four bases.

Kolp and French each yielded but five hits so that the slab duel was fairly even if you consider the misplays charged to the Pittsburgh shortstop.

Gus Suhr, who has hit safely in all of the seven engagements will be given a big reception by his boosters when he goes into the home opener. Apparently the big firstsacker is out to show the critics that his performance of last year represented an off season.

County Issues Links Permits Tomorrow

Permits for play at the North and South Allegheny Parks links are to be put on sale tomorrow at noon at 301 County Office Building, according to an announcement today by John Jay Burke, city office manager.

The golf permits again will be $10 and lockers $5. Inasmuch as there are only a limited number of lockers, it will be a case of first come, first served.

Applicants for permits must bring with them a tax receipt as of last year, and a photograph of themselves at least an inch and a half square.

GRID PRICES CUT

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., April 19. (AP.)—Down comes the price of football tickets. Reduction in the price of tickets for Western Conference home games from $3 to $2, effective next fall, was announced today by George Huff, director of athletics at the University of Illinois. Tickets for non-conference games will be $1, a reduction of 50 cents.

Nick Altrock Baseball's Humorist Says:

PHILADELPHIA, April 19.—I hope they do set next year's schedule back two weeks. In 90 years of baseball, man and batboy, I've frozen in Philly, chattered in Chicago and lived on pemmican and whale blubber in Boston. This spring was no exception. The opening day in Boston, when we had the flag-raising, the fans thought we were Peary and party taking possession of the North Pole.

Nick Altrock

I'm not only for a later start to dodge cold weather, but during dog days in August I favor transferring the St. Louis and Washington clubs to Atlantic City.

I see they've barred Goose Goslin's zebra war club. The officials are afraid if players can get away with striped bats they'll soon be going down to first in checkered taxicabs.

What's new on the local fistic Rialto.

George Panka, Homestead heavyweight, who has been in the limelight recently in connection with both Jack Dempsey and Max Schmeling, will box Tiny Powell of Clarksburg, W. Va., at Youngstown, Wednesday night of next week. Jimmy Moore, local Negro middleweight, and Sailor Dick Evans of Youngstown, will box the semi-final. It was in Youngstown that Dempsey was alleged by Panka's manager, Bunny Buntach, to have run out on an exhibition with Panka, stirring the natives to a desire to see the erstwhile bricklayer of Homestead in action.

The same Buntach announces that he has given Buck McTiernan back his contract, which had until April 28 to run. Buck has been on the sidelines for some six months because of manager trouble, and is understood to have made arrangements already with a new pilot. Buntach mailed him the contract yesterday with the word that he had heard Buck was in shape to box again and was releasing him so he could go about his plans unmolested. He also advised the Boxing Commission to this effect.

Matchmaker Jules Beck reports a lot of interest from out-of-town places in his show at the Moose Temple tomorrow night, and attributes it to the fact that a lot of visitors will be in town for the Pirates' home opener and are making reservations to take in the fights as well. He has Billy Rose, of Cincinnati, and Tiger Joe Randall, of Elizabeth, in the main bout, and Leon Jendrasiak, of Grand Rapids, and Steve Senich, of Homestead, in another 10-rounder.

Between Rounds

Two 10-round bouts also feature the weekly card at the Kaufman Arena on Friday night. Jimmy Taylor and Jack Wilson are in the top spot, and Marty Horrock opposes Marty McHale in the other feature.

An all-star card backs up Max Schmeling's exhibition in Cleveland tomorrow night. The Al Brown-Jack Portz main title bout is out, but Billy Wallace meets Battling Bullahan, Sailor Brown opposes George Parisch, and Bruno pals engage Joe Zeman in eight-rounders, and there will be two four-rounders.

Francis Flynn's German wrestler, Dutch Henry Krobbel, meets Pete Theiss of Wheeling, in a bout in connection with the Willie Davies-Johnny Warner boxing show at Fairmont, W. Va., Friday night. Frankie Reilly and Eddie Guba are in the semi-final.

Promoter-manager Bernard Kelly, Jr., has signed Charley Baxter and Benny McArthur for a return bout at Fairmont, W. Va., May 6, and also has matched Billy McArthur against Martin Leonard, at Grand Rapids, Mich., April 28.

Roger Bernard boxes Bud Mongino at the small Broadway Club in Philadelphia, Thursday night.

Tony Herrera and Ray Culver, of Erie, will meet in an eight-round bout on the Mickey Walker-King Levinsky program at the Chicago Stadium April 29. Baxter Calmes, Oklahoma City heavyweight, and Vincent Parilla, a recent Argentine importation and one of Walker's sparring mates, also are down for an eight-rounder.

Lifeblood Is Being Pumped Into Business

—By B. C. FORBES—

MONEY MAKES the mare go. The Feders Reserve Board at last has begun to pump money [illegible] the veins of business, and prosperity into the [illegible] ing [illegible] credits last week took fully $500,000,000 of Government obligations off the hands of the banks. The banks, in turn, are using the money [illegible] any points.

Mr. Forbes

DOES [illegible] ning of [illegible]

THE FOLLOWING [illegible] such action [illegible] Caulay [illegible] president of [illegible] ance company. Mr. Macaulay tells me:

"Depression has continued because commodity prices continued to drop. Until this process is reversed there can be no recovery.

"The reason is evident. If a manufacturer has to accept for his products only 60 cents for each dollar he formerly received he must get into difficulties. He cannot reduce production costs as drastically—he cannot greatly lower wages; interest and taxes he cannot lower at all. We cannot hope for prosperity until business again becomes profitable.

"This [illegible] are again headed upward.

Mr. Macaulay continued:

"Low prices are specially hard on corporations or individuals who owe money on bonds or mortgages. When they borrowed the dollar had a certain purchasing value; today its purchasing value may be 50 per cent higher or more.

"To meet payments they must now deliver 3,000 pounds of copper instead of the 1,000 pounds necessary in 1925-28, 500 bales of cotton or 250 bushels of wheat instead of 100; and so on. They cannot do it.

"WHAT DO you suggest?"

"The credit base of the United States consists in part of gold and in part of government bonds, rediscounts and bills. Its amount can be increased by simply buying more bonds—without in any way departing from the gold standard. If the Federal Reserve were to buy $500,000,000 of government bonds the checks given in payment would be deposited with the commercial banks who would thus obtain that amount of additional Federal Reserve credit.

"From this credit they would at once pay off their rediscount borrowings and any balance would increase the credit base and enable them to extend approximately 10 times that amount of commercial credit. Money would at once become more plentiful."

"BUT HASN'T the Federal Reserve been buying bonds?"

"Yes, but they were buying only about $25,000,000 per week. That was too minute a dose. Business may be likened to a patient whose blood has been draining away for two years. Federal Reserve credit is the life blood of business. Why not give a dose large enough to be at once effective?"

HAPPILY, [illegible] Reserve has [illegible] nothing such a [illegible] $100,000,000 or larger purchases weekly the effect would be potentially felt. [illegible] banks and bankers [illegible] ing and act with the courage the [illegible] —and previous [illegible] rationally.

WHEAT STAGES LATE RALLY

CHICAGO, April 19 (AP)—Brisk rallies in grain prices took place in the last hour today, the market giving evidence of having worked itself into an oversold condition.

Preceding the late rally, wheat was down 5 cents a bushel from the recent high. A stimulative factor was World-Wide Texas mills had paid 31½ cents over Chicago May price for No. 1 hard wheat as contrasted with 1 cent over May about three weeks ago.

Wheat closed firm [illegible] above yesterday's finish; corn unchanged to ¼ off; oats [illegible] up and provisions 5 to 25 cents down.

Holders Question C. & O. Stock Deals

RICHMOND, Va., April 19 (AP)—Minority stockholders of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway Company in the annual meeting here today sharply questioned officials regarding recent acquisitions of Erie and Pere Marquette Railway stocks at prices which they asserted were higher than market values at the time of the transaction.

W. J. Harahan, vice president who presided at the meeting explained that the value of large blocks of stock cannot be measured by market quotations.

Woodin Sees Heavy Railroad Buying

NEW YORK, April 19 (AP)—William H. Woodin, chairman of American Locomotive Company, told stockholders at the annual meeting:

"I would not be surprised to see quite a substantial movement toward railroad equipment buying by the fall of this year."

Jersey in Deal for Pan American Pete

NEW YORK, April 19 (AP)—Transfer of the foreign properties of the Pan American Petroleum and Transport Company, controlled by the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, to the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, is likely to result from negotiations now believed to be in their final phase, it was reported in Wall Street today.

The consideration, it is understood, will be both cash and stock and will amount to approximately $100,000,000.

While Pan American has been expanding its marketing facilities abroad in recent years these have not been built up to the point where they could absorb the company's production, a large part of which has found its way into the United States.

The Jersey company has large foreign markets which it can easily expand from Pan American production, instead of from domestic sources, it is said.

M. C. Brush Leaves U. S. Rubber Board

NEW YORK, April 19—Walter H. Marmon has been elected a director of United States Rubber Company, succeeding Matthew C. Brush.

If the present volume of its business were equal to the 1931 volume, the company would be showing fairly satisfactory results, said Francis B. Davis, president of the company, at the annual meeting of stockholders.

STOCK EXCHANGE TOPICS

It is seldom if ever that one finds Wall street in a frame of mind where it is hoping for a letdown in speculative activity to a point of almost complete stagnation. But there are some people in the financial community just now who would welcome a period of extreme dullness in the share market. As a matter of fact several individuals have expressed the wish that several days of about 150,000 shares would come to pass. This of course would mean mighty slim pickings for brokers so far as commissions are concerned. But such a development would be regarded as of immense significance in that it would be accepted as indicative of completion of such liquidation as remains.

Absence of seasonal improvement in the motor trade is expected to reflect in the impending first quarter reports of the leaders in the industry. Chrysler, it is understood, will be found to have operated in the "red," much as it did in the first quarter of 1931. The company reported net of 33 cents a share for the whole of last year, after adjustment of net current assets of foreign subsidiaries to exchange rates on December 31. The report for the March quarter is expected to show a loss of more than $500,000, which would compare with a deficit of $919,927 in the corresponding quarter last year.

The leading can manufacturing companies it is learned are contemplating the issuance of quarterly earning statements. The purpose of the move in that direction it is believed is to flatten out the effect of seasonal influences which reflect in unofficial estimates which get around from time to time. Such reports as are under consideration will it is understood set forth earnings on a yearly basis at the end of each quarter. Whether the reported new departure will be put into force commencing with the figures as of the end of March this year is not known, but should the practice be inaugurated immediately, the first of such reports may be available shortly.

There is much conjecture in Wall street concerning what action directors of United States Steel will take on the common dividend at their next meeting one week from today. No clue was seen at the annual stockholders' meeting yesterday, in the statement of Myron C. Taylor, chairman of the board. Should the directors decide that a futher reduction in dividends is necessay, close followers of the company's affairs reasoned that workers in both the corporation's mills and its offices might also be called upon to take another cut.

"Business is still running at about the same rate as in the first quarter," Gerard Swope, president of General Electric Company stated at the annual meeting. "We hope to be able to keep business at about this rate and to continue to show operating profits as reported in the first quarter. Operations are now between 20 and 25 per cent of capacity."

Among the first of the big roads to report for March, Union Pacific figures indicate the company has a tight grip on its expenses. Gross for the month was down about $3,700,000 compared with March last year, but net operating income showed a drop of only $100,000, standing at $1,314,264 last month as against $1,414,527 in March, 1931. The same measure of control is indicated in the figures for the first three months which indicated a drop of some $10,000,000 in gross from a year ago, while net operating income for the same period was down less than $800,000.

NEW BATS

No baseball team can hope for the pennant which continues to worry about yesterday's errors.

Many a hard hit ball goes foul by inches, Babe Ruth often strikes out with the bases full, and kicking about close decisions only delays the game.

All of us can learn much about the psychology of victory by reviewing the statistics of ninth inning rallies which have turned apparent defeat into victory.

Fighting spirit wins in baseball or in business.

STOCK MARKET TONE HEAVY AT CLOSE

Losses in Main Small, But Several Finish Off 1 to 4; Some Make Fresh Lows

NEW YORK, April 19—(AP.)—Scattered selling kept the stock market on the downgrade again today. While losses in the main body of shares were small, there were several net declines of 1 to 4 points at the finish, carrying some of the leaders into new low ground. The closing tone was heavy. Sales approximated a million shares.

The rails had an intervale of strength in the late morning which bolstered the entire list for a time, but prices sagged again during the afternoon, until just before the close, when some covering appeared. Rails and oils closed about steady. The carrier issues were helped somewhat by advance estimates of this week's freight car loadings report indicating a nominal change from the previous week, in contrast to earlier expectations of another substantial decline.

Allied Chemical was a soft spot, breaking about 4 points. American Telephone dipped more than 2 to a new low under 98, then recovered most of its loss. It was the first time it had broken par since 1921. American Can reduced a decline of 2 points to a fraction. United States Steel broke 30 for the first time since 1908, with an extreme drop of 1¾. American Tobacco B, McKeesport, North American and Western Union lost a point or more and General Electric sagged a major fraction to a new low. Pan American B gained 2 points in response to report of possible acquisition by Standard of New Jersey.

Weakness in Allied Chemical had no accompanying developments in the news regarding the company's situation. It was pointed out in some quarters that there had presumably been considerable shrinkage in the value of securities which it holds. The can stocks have been reactionary in response to indications that the pack of canned goods would be smaller this year. Continental reported net of $3.05 a share in the 12 months ended March 31, off 22 cents from the net reported for the 12 months ended December 31. Coca Cola has been under rather persistant pressure of late. Some quarters have attributed selling to the agitation for legalization of beer, and there have been some rumors of foreign selling.

Rails were still under the favorable effects of the Interstate Commerce Commission special report urging federal regulation of interstate bus lines. In the oils, Pan-American "B" rose moderately to the best price of the year, reflecting news that Standard of New Jersey was negotiating to acquire the bulk of its foreign properties.

General Electric's first quarter report, showing net of only 16 cents a share, against 38 cents in the like period of last year, was even less satisfactory than generally expected, and presumably influenced the slump to a new low price in the shares.

MURDER OF THE NIGHT CLUB LADY :-: :-: By ANTHONY ABBOT

Dead Girl's Mother Collapses While Being Questioned By Commissioner

CHAPTER XI

"Is Carewe your real name?" he asked suddenly.

She looked up at him in dark astonishment.

"What makes you think—"

"Now, Mrs. Carewe, will you tell me?"

"Why not? My real name is Carewe. That was my maiden name."

"And you come from—"

"England. I married there. My husband was a Rumanian living in exile."

"Lola's father?"

"Yes. He deserted us in Liverpool when he was allowed to go back to his country. I have never heard from him again. I hope to God he lies in hell, too."

This last passionate outburst from the old woman uttered with a cold and calm that struck me as quite fiendish.

"Your husband's name was—"

"Michael Jorga."

"So your daughter's real name is Lola Jorga?"

"How did you come to change the name?"

"Lola went on the stage. She danced. We thought a new name would help, and someone suggested Lola Carewe."

"And where was Lola born and later educated?"

"I worked to send her to public schools and high. How I worked I won't tell you. It was a terrible struggle. I worked like a man."

REVIEWS ACTIVITIES

With a shrug Colt turned to details of more immediate interest.

"Now, tell me about tonight."

"Tonight!"

"Yes—or even earlier. How did you spend this afternoon?"

"I went to see a—a terrible show—at the Palace."

"And you got home—"

"Around five o'clock. Then I lay down and took a nap."

"And from then on?"

"That's not hard to remember. We all had dinner here together—Christine and Lola and I. Then they dressed to go to their parties. Mr. Rowland came for Lola and Mr. Guy Everett came for Christine and they went out like they always do and left me here with the servants. I listened to the radio for a while. I soon tired of that. Then I went into my room and began reading The New Arabis—that's my favorite book. But first I read the evening newspapers. Then I settled down to my book and forgot everything else. And first thing I knew Lola came home with a horde of policemen."

"Do you like Christine?"

"Yes—why not? But she is a nuisance. I don't mean to be unkind about Christine, but I do get tired of having her around here."

"Ever tell Lola that?"

"Oh, yes. But she seemed to want to keep her right here. I think they were planning some kind of business together."

ASKS ABOUT SERVANTS

Colt's glance at my skipping pencil seemed positively grateful. He knew that every nugget of information he unearthed was being carefully stored for future study.

"Do you consider all your servants above suspicion?" Dougherty then asked.

"We have only two. Eunice and Chung are both incompetents in my opinion. My daughter insisted on retaining them. I am sure they are harmless. There was some giggling among the girls when they found some love poems addressed to Lola and Christine."

"Written by Chung?"

"Yes—it was all passed over as a joke."

"By the way, Christine's escort this evening was Guy Everett. You mean the actor?"

"Yes."

"About 9:30. They were going to the Lion's Paw."

"Were they in good spirits when they left?"

"Absolutely."

"Do you know where Guy Everett lives?"

"Yes, at the Axton Club."

A STARTLING QUESTION

At a glance from Colt I went to the telephone. While he went on, questioning Mrs. Carewe, I was calling the Axton Club which was just around the corner. The operator there informed me that Mr. Guy Everett was not in. I left word to have him telephone Lola Carewe immediately when he returned.

Colt was still interrogating the mother.

"Can you suggest any reason why anyone should want to kill Lola?" he asked.

"I do not believe Lola was murdered," the old woman retorted surprisingly with a heavy sigh.

"Why not?"

"Who should wish to kill a beautiful girl like my Lola? Doctor Baldwin says she had heart trouble."

Colt made no attempt to argue but again switched to a different tack.

"Mrs. Carewe," he asked, altering his voice to a confidential key, "how old was Lola?"

Colt put the question in the mildest and most indifferent of tones. His careless manner contained no foreshadowing of a coming sudden trust, his chief weapon in examination.

"About 35."

"Why did Lola quarrel with Basil?"

The swift jabbing thrust produced an electrifying effect upon the aged woman. Her eyes lighted up. Her mouth opened wide. Her hands clapped together. Unsteadily she rose to her feet.

"Basil!" she croaked. "What do you know about Basil?"

AGED WOMAN COLLAPSES

In truth, Colt's question had surprised me, too. I had dismissed from my mind the picture of that laughing boy on Lola's dressing table. But Thatcher Colt never forgets anything that seems significant.

"Tell me the truth about Basil," the chief insisted sternly.

The truth repeated the old woman hysterically. "I do not understand."

What good will it do Mrs. Carewe to hear anything? We are fighting to get the facts, sooner or later.

Basil is dead and that's all there is to it.

How did he die? a keen Colt without relaxing a muscle in his tense face.

Mrs. Carewe closed her eyes.

"What is Basil to me?" she asked in her husky, defiant voice.

"You are afraid of Basil?"

"No! No! No!" cried Mrs. Carewe, wringing her hands.

"Lola loved him," countered Colt, his tone accusing.

"Never," cried the mother, beating her breast. Her excitement had inexplicably increased at the question. Her voice now was shrill with rage. "No, she might have said so, but she never meant it. That cruel boy! She never could have loved such a—"

Writhing and frothing at the mouth, Mrs. Carewe fell on the floor. The hawk-like nose, the wispy gray hairs loose about her ears, the wreathing gestures of her withered hands gave her the appearance of a witch. The unnatural energy of the hysteria made the impression all the more vivid and terrible.

Synopsis

Lola Carewe, night club habitue, receives a death threat New Year's Eve. Previously her dog and parrot were mysteriously killed. District Attorney Merle K. Dougherty suspects Lola of being the "brains" of the jewel thief ring that has baffled the police. Although her husband, Gaylord Gifford, died practically penniless, Lola lives in luxury. Police Commissioner Thatcher Colt places a guard in Lola's penthouse apartment, warning her that she must not be alone in a room at any time. Mrs. Carewe, Lola's mother, Chung the butler, Eunice the maid, and Vincent Rowland, an attorney, are present. In the living room the commissioner finds a bag belonging to Christine Quires, Lola's guest. It evidently had been used that night, yet Lola informs Colt that Christine is at the Lion's Paw, a roadhouse, where Lola was to have joined her. Colt is surprised to find Mrs. Carewe's room in strange contrast to the surrounding wealth. Lola's own boudoir is a gaudy contradiction of the living room's elegance. Lola refuses to reveal the identity of the young man whose photograph adorns her dresser. Against orders, she enters the guest room alone. A scream follows. Rushing in, Colt finds her on the floor, unconscious. Dr. Hugh Baldwin, a friend, diagnoses the case as a heart attack. Lola dies. Colt calls it murder. Unnoticed, he takes something from the doctor's bag. Police Lieut. Fallon reports that no one but the doctor entered the house. The elevator boy claims that Christine returned home about 12:15 a. m., before Lola and the police arrived, yet no trace can be found of her.

Now Go On

Colt held the box to the light.

Colt's intuition was right in some way the mysterious Basil was a potent part of Lola's past—important at least emotionally to both mother and daughter.

Flynn and I carried the moaning old woman into her bedroom where Doctor Baldwin and Dorothy Lola attended her.

This diversion gave us a moment to learn of another interesting discovery, how significant we were not to realize, however, until Colt's case was well advanced. Mackenzie was back. Detective Mackenzie whom Colt had sent to paw through the soot and slush under the penthouse windows in quest of clues. From the ground he was now back with us 23 flights in the air and his flushed face told us that he had ineffectively returned empty-handed.

"I never saw the likes of this before, Mr. Colt," he gurgled, as he laid what he had found in the Commissioner's hands. It was a small unpainted wooden box with a sliding lid. It was splintered—the thing had been cast down with violent force or else hurled from some high place.

His dark eyes luminous with the excitement of discovery, Thatcher Colt held up the box to the light. The interior was stuffed with cotton batting.

Colt turned on us all the flash of a rogue's smile.

"Gentlemen," he stipulated, "for the present let us agree not to mention this little discovery of ours. It may prove to be of first-rate importance before we get through."

Saying which he found a sheet of wrapping paper in which he sheathed the box with a care almost maternal in its tender solicitude. As Colt was thus engaged the door of the mother's bedroom was opened. With an air of finality Baldwin emerged with the decision that Mrs. Carewe was too ill for further questioning for at least another 24 hours. At this Colt raised his brows. But he made no comment. Instead, as it would probably be another 10 minutes before the crowd from headquarters arrived, he asked at once for Chung, the butler.

Heart of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Injured Chinese Reveals More Information About Plot

Harry Underwood took a step forward as the wounded Chinese on the bed asked if I had a sister a twin.

Now what do you suppose he's got in his bonnet?" he muttered out of the side of his mouth to me in a tone inaudible to the wounded man and indeed to Katherine as well.

I don't know," I murmured back in the same tone and then spoke brightly to the man on the bed.

No, I have no sister. I am an only child."

The wondering look deepened in his face and he lay very still for several moments.

Your face no hurt," he said at last assertingly not questioningly. But big man, bad China boy, he say if you no give him paper he fix your face so you wish you dead."

His words made plain to me something which I had only fearfully skirted in surmise before and I recoiled at the vision which those faltering syllables brought to me. Once again I saw the hideous face of the Chinese who had watched me from the window of the Tsen farmhouse and demanded the letter on flaming red rice paper and in Chinese characters which Mr. Tsen had found on the seat of my car. I saw the venom in his face, the cold fury in his voice as he told me I had "too plitty a face to spoil" and saw the stealing backward of his hand to his pocket, which I had stopped by threatening him with the little silencer pistol that Lillian had put in my bag for emergency.

MADGE BEWILDERED

"He tried to throw a bottle of stuff at my face," I exclaimed, speaking slowly as to a child, "but he did not succeed."

The puzzled look deepened.

"He say he throw bottle spoil face," the man insisted feebly.

It was my turn to be bewildered. According to the theory which all of us had concerning the movements of this messenger, he had not gone back to the gang employing him after he had come to me demanding Marion's secret lockbox which I had refused to give him. His terror of his employers, his dread of going back to them without the thing for which he had been sent, had been so patent that when the letter addressed to Lee Chow in Chinese characters had been found fastened to the seat of my automobile we had argued that he must have gained some inkling of Lee Chow's presence in the country and have written the letter to him. But this knowledge of what the gang leaders had said seemed to indicate that he had gone back to them.

How do you know that the man said that he had thrown the bottle at me? Did you go back to them after you asked me for the lockbox?"

No," he said at last. "I no go back. I no dare go back, say they kill me if I come back, no box. But I watch and I hear and I see. I hear him say he will throw bottle at your face and I hear him say he did throw bottle and hear him laugh when he say you never be plitty any more. I velly glad he no spoil plitty face. No matter what happens old man like me, but Lee Chow and his fiend hearts velly sad if plitty face spoiled."

AN OMINOUS SPEECH

If this speech meant anything at all it meant that Lee Chow and Hugh Grantland were somewhere in the country and that this poor wretch had received news, no matter how vague, of their whereabouts.

It meant something else also. I had heard a little of the workings of the Oriental mind and I knew the former henchman of Lee Chow had the idea in his head that Lee Chow's "fiend" had a very special interest in me. I did not need Harry Underwood's quick, teasing glance at me to make my cheeks burn at the reflection.

But the next instant Mr. Underwood had turned serious again. He spoke in an undertone to Katherine.

Katherine slipped practiced fingers to the man's wrist and scrutinized his face keenly.

I'm sorry," she said, "but I'll have to call off the seance right now. He's stood this pretty well considering his condition. But I can't permit anything more tonight. Tomorrow, perhaps. I'll see how he is in the morning."

We opened the door just in time to see Dicky racing down the hall and to hear him call as he unlocked and threw open the front door:

Madge! Madge! Answer me!"

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

From all reports it is evident that the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club had a banner day in attendance Saturday. The roll call at many of the theaters indicated a record-breaking turnout. This not only reflects the interest of the thousands of boys and girls in this popular organization but also a tribute to the care and study the various theater managers give to the arrangement of the entertainment for the youngsters.

If it were not for the fact that the members of the club have been inspired with a personal interest in their organization, encouraged by the personal interest of the managers, these boys and girls would not be looking forward to the regular Saturday meetings.

PROGRAMS DIFFER

There are never two programs alike, never any duplication of the talking pictures. The membership of the club is developing new talent every week and these thousands of boys and girls are not backward in their applause when their own members sing a song, play a musical instrument or give an exhibition of dancing on the stage.

Another Coal Strike

The Problem of Most Immediate Importance Is to Prevent Outbreaks of Violence

As news comes from Ohio of the wounding of striking coal miners by National Guardsmen the announcement is made that hundreds of miners in the Pittsburgh district have also gone on strike.

Under the leadership of officials of the United Mine Workers of America the men have walked out at three mines in Washington County.

Whatever the merits of the strikers' grievances may be there is one thing of which the public may rest assured. If the strikes are conducted by the United Mine Workers, it cannot be called a Communist demonstration. For between the United Mine Workers and the National Miners' Union, a Communist organization, there exists a deep antipathy, and the conservative and older United Mine Workers will have nothing to do with anything that savors of Bolshevism.

The problem of immediate importance in the strikes is to prevent violence. We do not want Pennsylvania to fall in sanguinary battles such as have been occurring in Ohio coal fields.

We want no more fatal riots like that at Wheatwood, of which we had an echo in a Supreme Court decision handed down yesterday, upholding the conviction of Thomas Myers-cough, Communist miners' leader, and others.

It is up to both sides in the controversy to keep the peace and to adjust their differences quickly and in an orderly manner.

If the operators consider it necessary to post armed guards to protect their property, let the guards be warned against shooting except as a last resort, in self-defense.

Not So High-Handed

Gov. Pinchot Gives an Account of His Stewardship in Telling Why He Dismissed a State Official.

Gov. Pinchot did not explain at the time, nor has he explained since, why he dismissed Dr. John R. Conover as county health director and put Dr. Eugene Conti, County Commissioner C. C. McGovern's nephew, in his place.

The Sun-Telegraph, which branded the Governor's course in this matter as high-handed, is pleased to note that he has taken a more reasonable course in his dismissal of Dr. R. E. Irwin as head of the milk control work of the State Department of Health.

Pinchot has seemingly in this latest exercise of his power to discharge state officials to render to the public an accounting of his stewardship and a defense of his wielding of the ax. He says Dr. Irwin was discharged because he purchased for undernourished children large quantities of milk and cream from western states when he should have bought Pennsylvania milk.

If this is so, Dr. Irwin showed poor judgment at any rate.

Gov. Pinchot will not be criticized for removing officials for cause. It is the arbitrary lopping off of official heads for political reasons, to make places for the faithful under the spoils system, that invites condemnation.

Visit the Food Show

Housewives and Others Will Find It Well Worth While to Attend the Grocers' Exposition.

It is to be hoped that every housewife in Pittsburgh will attend the annual Food Show, which opened at Motor Square Garden last night and will continue for two weeks, with afternoon and evening sessions.

The show is under the auspices of the Allegheny County Grocers' Association and is an exposition not only of groceries and food preparations, but also of household appliances. Not only housewives, but also their husbands and others will find a visit to the show well worth while.

Progress is being made in dietetics and culinary science. We do not eat exactly the same things that were consumed by our ancestors. We have found that some things that were staples of their diet are not as wholesome as other things that are now available. New discoveries are constantly being made which enable us to improve our menus and add to the pleasures of the table.

To keep up to date on this vital subject, to put oneself in position to take advantage of the latest improvements, it is almost indispensable that the Food Show be visited.

17 New Eagle Scouts

Attainment of the Highest Award in Boy Scoutdom Is an Achievement of Which Any Grownup Might Be Proud.

Among the ceremonies in which Paul Sipel, the Erie Boy Scout who accompanied Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd to the Antarctic, participated during his week-end visit to Pittsburgh was the presentation of awards to 17 newly created Eagle Scouts.

This community is entitled to take considerable satisfaction from the attainment of this highest award in Scoutdom by so many boys. For it is no easy matter to become an Eagle Scout; any grownup might well take pride in the mastery of the subjects which an Eagle Scout must know.

We are familiar with the idea of Scout activities as good wholesome fun for boys. We know of the Boy Scouts' ambition to do a good turn daily. But some do not know as much as they should about the educational value of Scout training; they do not appreciate what a boy must learn, what tests both mental and manual he must pass, before he can become an Eagle Scout.

The Forest Fire Peril

Campers and Fishermen Must Be Especially Cautious in The Woods This Spring.

A forest fire which swept into Byrnesville, in the eastern part of the state, on Sunday burned three houses, and for a time threatened the whole town with destruction. It is an example of the danger that lurks in almost every forest fire.

There has not been a great amount of rain this spring, and the woods on that account are more than ordinarily inflammable. Thousands of trout fishermen are camping in the woods. They build fires to cook their meals and for warmth. Many of them smoke.

Forest fires start not infrequently from abandoned campfires that were left smoldering, or from lighted matches, cigaret and cigar stubs, or pipe ashes carelessly tossed away by campers and fishermen. Several years ago the state forest authorities asked visitors not to smoke while walking through the woods, but only when seated or at rest.

It is to be borne in mind that the damage from forest fires must be measured not only in the timber actually destroyed, but also in the young trees that are prevented from reaching maturity. Forest fires do an immense amount of damage that cannot be accurately measured in dollars.

This damage could be prevented, for most forest fires are due to human carelessness.

It's worse than folly to pursue
That false, misleading light

A Heartening Sign

By Merryle Stanley Rukeyser

BOLD stabilizing measures should be taken at this time to save business from further deterioration growing out of strong adverse trends which are under way.

In this connection, the enlarged effort of the Federal Reserve System to arrest deflation through pumping additional credit into the banking system is noteworthy.

Doctrinaire opposition to such a counter deflationary maneuver overlooks the alarming extent to which purchasing power has been destroyed through the rapid shrinkage of bank deposits, the chief medium of exchange in our money economy.

BANK deposits can be recreated through commercial loans to manufacturers, retailers and farmers. The new reconstruction machinery and the open market policy of the Federal Reserve make it practicable for banks to reverse their penny pinching practices, and to go out and encourage honest and competent businessmen to borrow.

It behooves the Federal Reserve authorities to exert leadership in the direction of inducing member banks to pass along the new credit to the public, instead of extinguishing it through repayment of indebtedness at the central banks.

The individual banker does not feel ready to shift around to a constructive viewpoint until he is assured that other bankers will do likewise. As long as there is a stampede toward unreasoning liquidity, no individual banker feels inclined to break away from the herd.

It is true that the banks have been liberal in offering credit to gilt-edged corporations, rich in cash, WHICH DO NOT NEED BORROWING FUNDS.

But they cannot really accomplish reflation—or counter-deflation—until bankers are willing to extend loans to sound institutions with less cash on hand which do need to borrow.

THE Glass-Steagall act gave the Federal Reserve the power and the courage to intervene. The present campaign for expansion of the circulating medium represents an attempt to make use of this emergency legislation.

But the circle must be completed through the buoyant cooperation of regular bankers, who deal with the business public.

In alluding to their failure thus far, Wallace Brett Donham, dean of the graduate school of business administration, Harvard, points out in his new book entitled "Business Looks at the Unforeseen":

"Sheer individualism in a banking system means that all banks in times like these fail to provide the facilities the community is entitled to expect from its banks.

"The cure of this credit situation, if started now, does not involve inflation. Expansion of credit is not necessarily inflation. . . . Industry needs the stimulus of higher prices, and all debtors are entitled to expect such a reversal of price trends. Even if inflation to a moderate extent were involved, we should assume its dangers rather than the far greater dangers of making permanent our present drastic deflation of prices. . . . There is no more important problem than the restoration of most domestic prices to their 1925 level."

The possibility of carrying the present Federal Reserve drive against the spirit of panic and stagnation to a logical conclusion constitutes a heartening sign on the troubled business horizon.

It's Like This—In Spring

Love is not a springtime hallucination that the man of the moment is the man of your life.

* * *

That one man's love-making is going to be different from another's.

* * *

That one man's kisses will never grow cold or stale or casual—as other men's have.

* * *

That you will never want to cry on any other man's shoulder.

That THIS is the Real Thing—the Big Moment—and all the others were merely little rehearsals.

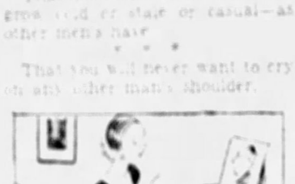
That because you both like your beefsteak rare and Russian dressing on your salad and prefer Shaw to Eugene O'Neill you are mentally and spiritually mated and will never differ about the temperature of a room, the height of the window shades or who shall drive the car.

* * *

That you will get a Bigger Thrill out of darning one man's socks, burning his toast and keeping his dinner waiting than you would out of riding in another man's limousine or wearing another man's family emeralds.

* * *

That no matter how many married philanderers have tried to make love to you, you have found the one impregnable Being who will never glance at another woman.



That there will always be more kick in sitting at home and listening for one man's ring on the telephone than in going out and listening to another man's love-making.

That a two days' beard, a collarless neck and a few spring colds won't rub off any of the glamor.

That because he can make you so miserable when he wants to, he is going to make you perfectly happy.

That other loves may have sagged, nose-dived, crashed or gone dead—but THIS is "different!"

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, April 19.—Broadway brings to the average mind a picture of night life at top speed—cafes, musical revues, night clubs, dawn sandwich salons and a world in pyrotechnics. Yet in reality there are three Broadways stretching from the sea level Battery to Riverdale, "bosomed high in tufted trees."

There is the Broadway running southward from Twenty-third street and the Broadway sweeping north from Seventy-second. Between these two is the district known as the Great White Way, where life, churned to a furious froth, is the fermenting ground of the national headache.

On upper Broadway, commerce has not totally routed domesticity. Here one finds apartment houses, family hotels and flats over stores. The neighborhood movie flourishes. Also open-fronted markets, corner notion stores and other signets of Suburbia.

There are bowed windows revealing canaries and parrots. Dogs sun themselves on stoops. In the center of the thoroughfare is a mall with a scatter of stone benches where old men dream, women knit at the side of baby carriages and children roll hoops.

Upper Broadway has its stock company, presenting last season's Rialto successes featuring many notable players, temporarily "at liberty." There are few night clubs for the going for them is rough. Uptown goes down to the Roaring Forties for its night clubbing.

Lower Broadway is in utter desolation at dusk. Mostly it is a jobbing district. The Broadway-Central is the only hotel left. In the lulling nocturnal quiet one may walk for many blocks without seeing a single pedestrian. Night patrolmen call it No Man's Land.

The only metropolitan spot left where the dolorous zing-a-ling of the blacksmith anvil is heard is on fashionable Murray Hill. A weather-beaten shop has been there since 1895. Children going from school stop at the open doorway to watch the flying sparks.

Joseph Urban is reputed the most indefatigable toiler among artists. My admiration for Urban, however, transcends his creative genius. Four winters ago while the Atlantic lashed in a 75-mile gale I crossed with him from Europe. In throes of a rush job he was returning from a one-day visit with his aged mother in an Austrian village. A forlorn postscript reading, "I wish my son could be with me Christmas," inspired the two weeks' journey to be with her from 8 in the morning until 10 at night Christmas day.

John McCormack will attend the Bohemian Club jinks at their California grove this year despite the "run-around" he received last visit. From president down everybody becomes a nobody at this encampment. Conceit, if any, is squeezed out by a crushing indifference. One evening around the open fire a quartet was in embryo. McCormack, in spirit of good fellowship, volunteered, but was informed coolly Bohemians selected their own quartets. Furthermore, not once during his stay was he permitted to unleash his golden voice. McCormack proved he could "take it" and held the music while the amateurs sang. Now everybody wants him back again.

There are few grander troupers than the blonde Pat Rooney, who nearing 60, looks no more than 40. He executes the same nimble steps that made his father famous. His devotion to his wife, Marion Bent, is a legend of the stage. Never has he tasted intoxicating drink.

Near Grand Central I passed one of those high-ceiled yacht stores. There was about it the forlorn grandeur of Versailles, a sort of mausoleum of mockery amid the thick perplexities of a world in confusion. How I go on!

My yachting is confined to two experiences—a dinner at anchor in the Hudson and a cruise to Hell Gate. Each commodore called to the departing dinghy for me to say nothing about it in the column. Passed dividends and yachting do not mix.

I had made a modest gesture toward a yachting career when things flooeyed. Now I suppose the cap I purchased will be out of style when yachts are the go again. Incidently, I would have named it "The Tallulah," a swipe from Miss Bankhead's given name.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

You're unhappy—you say?
You're poor and you're rebellious
Because you can't have fun,
Can't go on adventures
And see strange and beautiful things
As rich people do—yes?

But you're wrong!
You can have these experiences
No matter how poor you are.
You can find these adventures
In any place, at any time.
You can find them
IN PEOPLE.

Not special people,
Nor unusual people,
Just in ordinary people—
In the common, mingled mass of people
You see every day.
In casual passers-by.
In them you can find
All the mystery and adventure
And beauty and nobility
And fun and excitement
That you crave.

There is drama in people.
That is where all the drama comes from.
You do not need to pay admission
To show houses to see drama.
It is happening all about you.
Every alley is a "STREET SCENE."
Every house or office
Filled with people
Loving, hating,
Dreaming, scheming,
Is a "GRAND HOTEL."
Every man you meet
Is a "DR. JEKYLL AND MR. HYDE."
Every woman, in her secret heart,
Lives the role of "MATA HARI."
And every human heart—
Lonely, frightened,
Sorrowing, tempted
Longs to come some day
To peaceful "GREEN PASTURES."

You do not need to enter show houses
To find drama.
Always the play goes on
In the eyes, starry or tearful,
In the lips, wistful or wrung,
In the hands, tense or limp,
Of those who pass you.

You do not need to go to Africa
To find adventures.
Every human soul
Has its adventures—
Amazing and merry,
Bright and beautiful,
Dark and dangerous.
Every soul will share
Its adventure with you
If you are ready
To forget yourself
And go along.

Drama and adventure,
Mystery and glory,
Beauty and delight—
They are waiting all around you.
They are yours for the taking,
And they do not cost a penny.
Open your eyes.
Open your heart.
And they are yours.

Isn't It So?

Self-love is a mote in every man's eye.

If you expect to wear spurs you must win them.

As a rule an heiress is more interesting than she looks.

If a man's credit is good it is because he seldom uses it.

A good deal of room at the top is made by men who have gone to sleep there, and fallen off.

Farce comedy—a young man trying to appear old and an old man trying to appear young.

Never ask a man how he likes married life in his wife's presence if you want to hear the truth.

Singing should only be indulged in by those who have good voices; others should be content to be listeners.

WHERE GOES YOUTH?

By Winifred Black

The massage woman was talking to me about children the other day.

"Poor little things," she said, "they're so full of life! 'Pep' isn't that what you Americans call it? Well, whatever you call it, what becomes of it when they grow up? I often wonder about that.

"They go zipping along, full of fun and 'pep' and then all at once, at about 18 or 19, they slow down, and by the time they're 20 they're tired and listless, and don't take any interest in anything except maybe a new kind of hip flask, and it has to be a new kind, at that."

And then she told me about the time she was a little girl herself.

"We lived in Norway," said the massage woman, and her blue eyes looked as if she saw blue and white sails.

"My father was a farmer, and I was one of nine children.

"My mother couldn't bother much with us, so the older ones helped to scrub the younger ones, and we were all turned loose after breakfast and expected to come home to dinner, and to keep out of serious mischief in the meantime.

"My name was Ingebourne, but they never called me that. They called me Bell—and there was a reason for that.

"I was always crazy about animals—not only dogs, cats and horses, but sheep, goats, calves and even pigs. I always spent my day with the animals.

"When my mother would call me, sometimes I heard her and sometimes I was too busy to hear, but I never answered, anyhow. I just sat still in the sun and made myself as small as I could, so that nobody would see me; and then one of my brothers or sisters would have to come and look for me and take me home to dinner.

"So my mother fastened a little bell right between my shoulders where I could not reach it, and whenever I moved the bell told where I was.

"I dream of those days yet, and when I wake from my dreams I can hear the sheep ba-a-ahing, and smell the wild strawberries ripening in the valley by the blue sea.

"When I was about 6 years old my father brought us all to America. We came on an immigrant ship with a lot of our neighbors.

"One day when I was wandering over the ship I found some sheep, away down below the waterline, and I lay down there with one of the lambs and went to sleep. Nobody could find me, and it was decided that I had fallen overboard and was quiet at last.

"My mother cried, they say, and my father did his best to comfort her, but one of my brothers, who was always poking around to see what he could see, found me fast asleep with my head on the lamb's curly back.

"My mother pinned the bell on me again, and all the ship's passengers called me 'Little Bell.'

"When we crossed the country in the emigrant train, one day the engine stopped for water, and I saw some little girls out in the fields gathering wild flowers.

"Out I ran. Such beautiful flowers! Bluebells, and buttercups, and cowslips, and strange red flowers I learned afterwards were called Indian paint brushes. I had my apron full in no time.

"The engine had its drink, gave a shrill toot and was ready to start. My brother looked out of the window and saw me. With one leap he was on the ground. With another he had me under his arm. With a third we were on the already moving train.

"I spilled all my wild flowers in the excitement. I cried a good deal about that, but my brother said it served me right.

"Yes, I was full of life in those days. I wonder what I did with it all."

I looked at the massage woman, and thought of all the tired people she comforted with her strong and kindly hands.

"You give it all to us, now," I said.
